Taft Believes Arms Embargo Offers Support To Aggressors

Urges Senate to Pass
Administration Repeal Bill

NO WAR THREAT

Agreement Worked Out To Ease Strict Shipping Provisions

Washington—(P)—Vice President Garner was reported authoritatively today to be exerting his influence to effect a compromise on the shipping provisions of the administration neutrality legislation in an effort to bring debate to an early close.

Garner, informed persons said, has urged administration leaders to accept one of three compromise proposals made by Senators Johnson (D-Calif.), White (R-Maine) and Bailey (D-N.C.) in order to clear away one obstacle lying ahead of a final vote on the arms embargo repeal bill.

The three proposed amendments were delivered today to Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee for his study. Details were not revealed immediately, but, among other things, exemption of shipping to belligerent nations in the Pacific is involved.

Washington—(P)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) denounced today an arms embargo policy as favoring aggressors against peaceful nations and urged the senate to adopt the administration bill repealing the ban on munitions shipments.

He voiced approval of provisions which would prohibit American ships from carrying goods to warring countries, but recommended elimination of a section permitting 90-day credits on arms sales.

"We should prohibit our ships from going to Europe," he said. "That policy is no more cowardly than it is to keep people out of a burning house. It is simply good sense that we prevent American citizens not only from risking their own lives, but from plunging us into a war which may involve millions of other lives."

Taft is one of a half-dozen Republicans in session today favoring repeal of the arms embargo. He told the senate repeatedly that he believed the United States could remain out of the European war.

Certain of Peace
"The president of the United States," Taft said, "would make a tremendous mistake if he regarded the passage of this bill as in any way a symbol of popular approval of interference in Europe."

"The popular opposition to this bill, as far as it exists, is based on suspicion of the president's tendency to interfere in the European war. He has publicly pledged his determination to keep America at peace, and we can surely accept that pledge."

Taft, son of the pre-World war president, urged that congress remain in session to act promptly "on any emergency which may arise."

He declared that nothing would be so destructive to democratic government in the United States as war, and added:

"Those who control the present government believe in a planned economy under government control. A war policy of confiscation, dominated by that philosophy, would create a completely socialized form of life, from which we might never return to the liberty and freedom heretofore regarded as characteristic of America."

Reach Agreement
A bi-partisan agreement has been worked out in the senate to relax stringent shipping provisions of the administration's neutrality bill.

In general, influential senators said today, the projected change would permit American merchant vessels to sail to all areas where they would not be in danger.

It was said that these areas would be defined in the legislation itself, but that they might be restricted further by presidential order if danger to shipping should arise later.

College and City Preparing for Annual Homecoming Activities; Pep Meeting at Chapel Tonight

Merchants today were busy decorating their windows with miniature football fields, blue and white streamers for Lawrence and blue and maize streamers for Carleton in honor of the Lawrence college homecoming football game Saturday afternoon at Whiting field. Ribbons will be awarded to the merchants who have the most interesting decorations.

Because today's rain and snow made the grounds on the river bank back of Science hall muddy, the pep meeting at 8 o'clock will not be held there but at Lawrence chapel instead, the committee and college administration decided this morning.

Game Department Books are Open, MacKenzie Says

Director Invites 500
Hunters to Investigate
Conservation Body

Characterizing the recent investigation of the conservation department as a "malicious attempt by a couple of disgruntled wardens who were discharged, to upset the workings of the department," H. W. MacKenzie, director of the state conservation department, emphasized the clear record of the department before and after the discharge of the two wardens last night at the Armory.

It was the first annual Hunters party sponsored by the Outgame Conservation club and the hunters were there in their hunting clothes, many of them, to hear MacKenzie, to see Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Johnson, of Waupaca, perform with their guns, and to get a crack at some of the many gifts given away by the club.

"Everyone is welcome to investigate the game department," MacKenzie said. "We're not crooked. We're on the square and the books are open to anyone who wants to look at them."

MacKenzie was referring to the recent investigation during which he was accused by a discharged warden of furnishing liquor for a party of sportsmen during prohibition and other violations.

"They went back 20 years in the investigation to try to find out if maybe one of our men pulled the leg off a grasshopper," he said. "They couldn't dig up anything. Turn to page 16 col. 1

$10,000 Loss in Geise Farm Fire

Barn, Granary and Silo
Leveled in Blaze Near Clintonville

Clintonville—Fire destroyed a barn, granary and silo at a loss of nearly $10,000 on the Fred Geise farm, town of Mattoon, about 7 miles east of Clintonville, yesterday afternoon. The Clintonville rural fire department responded to a call about 3 o'clock and succeeded in saving the other farm buildings.

The fire is believed to have started in the 36 by 80 foot barn where 70 tons of hay were stored. The granary, 25 by 30 feet, contained 600 bushels of oats, 150 bushels of buckwheat and about $1,000 worth of seed. Two bulls and a calf also were destroyed. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Geise suffered a minor injury when kicked while removing horses from the barn.

Father Accused of Slaying His Blind, Feeble-Minded Son

New York—A dozen canaries sang unheeded today in a drab cold-water flat in upper Manhattan where police said a mentally-tortured elevator operator had choked-forn his blind 13-year-old son, feeble-minded since birth.

Neighbors said Louis Repuille, 38, had raised the canaries to augment his small income and provide for the child, a blind, deaf and feeble-minded child.

After all-night questioning, Repuille was charged with homicide and illegal possession of a dangerous weapon. Police said a revolver had been found in the apartment.

The body of the frail 45-pound boy, clad in a gingham dress and sweater, was found yesterday in the steel bedroom crib from which he had been unable to move without being lifted or carried.

Repuille was sitting dazed on the bed. An empty chloroform bottle was on the dresser.

Detectives Harry Roedel and James Harrison said the father described how he had held a chloroform-saturated cloth to the boy's face and told them:

80 Million to Be Spent on Rail Program

Contracts are Extended
Over Wide Range Of Industries

MUCH BUILDING Railroad Men Unable to Estimate Number of Jobs to be Created

Chicago—(P)—America's railroads, given the "highball" by an upsurge in business, have pulled the spending throttle and are pouring more than $80,000,000 into their property to keep the nation's trade and travel moving.

How much this will mean in jobs is incalculable, railroad men said. Contracts are scattered over a wide range of industries, much of the repair work can be done by crews maintained by individual lines, and the steel mills, sources of new rail, are rolling at capacity.

Railway Age, the carriers' trade magazine, reported that $80,000,000 worth of contracts for supplies and work were placed during September. New building and modernization programs, many of which won't be completed until next year, more than equal that figure.

The industry-wide program of preparedness to handle any size load of new business was begun last month in Washington when rail leaders announced immediate action to put their cars and locomotives in shape.

Seven's Comment
Preparedness was described by J. L. Beven, president of the Illinois Central system, in a speech of business men as "the best insurance against the possibility of government ownership" of the carriers.

The Illinois central, an important freight line, has embarked on a $9,200,000 spending plan.

The Pennsylvania railroad is spending about $20,000,000 over its regularly-scheduled expenditures.

The Santa Fe system has allotted $21,000,000 for 91,000 tons of rail, 2,800 new freight cars and for rebuilding 2,500 box, automobile and refrigerator cars, repairing locomotives and cars and improving track.

Next month the Rock Island lines will place into service two new seven-car "rocket" trains between Chicago and Colorado, costing a total of $1,200,000. The lines have received contract authorization to spend $4,750,000 more on 20 diesel switch engines, 1,000 new boxcars and rebuilding old boxcars.

New Equipment
The New York Central system's program calls for $10,000,000 worth of rail and freight equipment.

The Milwaukee road received contract authorization to buy 10 locomotives and 2,000 boxcars for $6,350,000 and contracts for 30,000 tons of rail and track fastenings for the 1940 program will be placed soon. The new cars will be built on completion of 1,000 cars now under construction.

Five hundred new freight cars are being built by the Chicago and North Western. In conjunction with the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific lines it is arranging to build during the next year two new streamlined passenger trains between Chicago and the west coast. The total cost will exceed $4,000,000.

The Burlington railroad will add three 4,000 horsepower diesel electric locomotives, capable of more than 100 miles an hour, to its fleet next spring. The road also has scheduled construction of 10 steam locomotives and purchase of 100 flat cars and 250 steel hopper cars. More than $3,000,000 will be spent.

Woman Posts Bond of $2,000 in Shooting

Dodgeville, Wis.—(P)—Mrs. Emma Steiner, 37, who told District Attorney G. J. Larkin she had shot and wounded Herman Everson, 49-year-old farmhand, posted $2,000 bond today for her release pending a hearing on charges of assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

The date of the preliminary examination has not been set, Iowa county authorities saying they would delay it until it could be determined whether Everson would recover. Wounded in the abdomen, he was reported in serious condition.

Mrs. Steiner and her 50-year-old husband, Albert, came to Dodgeville immediately after the shooting Tuesday. A warrant for Mrs. Steiner was issued yesterday and she was arraigned before Justice of the Peace T. H. Arthur.

Ex-Communist Says Rothstein, Slain Gambler, Loaned $1,750,000, to Red-Dominated Union

Washington—(P)—A former charter member of the American Communist party told the house committee investigating un-Americanism today that Arnold Rothstein, slain New York gambler, loaned the Communist-dominated Furriers' union about $1,750,000 in 1926, some of which went to New York policemen.

The witness, Maurice L. Malkin, Russian-born, naturalized American citizen, testified that $110,000 was paid to policemen in a 17-week period during the 1926 furriers' strike for keeping away from the union's "sluggers."

Malkin, who testified he was a member of the Communist party from its inception in 1920 until 1936, said he was sent to Sing Sing

Germany Hints Roosevelt Mediation Can End Strife But Sends No Plea to U.S.

Appeal to Russia Not Pressure Attempt,
F.D.R. Says

TEXT IS WITHHELD Finnish Civilians Told to Be Ready to Help Government

Stockholm—(P)—The Swedish government tonight ordered the strengthening of military defenses in upper Norrland—northeast Sweden near the Finnish border.

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt said today that American representations to Soviet Russia were merely an expression of interest and hope that nothing would be done to disturb peaceful relations in the Baltic or the independence of Finland.

The chief executive told a press conference that the diplomatic action was not to be construed in any way as a pressure move by the United States.

For that reason—because he did not want any misunderstanding, the president said, he was withholding for the time being the text of the representation made at Moscow yesterday by Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt.

The president said that on Monday of this week he began to worry about the situation in the Baltic because it looked as if it might be heading toward an extension of wars.

Scandinavians Alarmed
On Tuesday, he continued, diplomatic representatives of several Scandinavian nations called at the state department and the White House and said they were very much concerned. There was no suggestion, however, of joint action.

On Wednesday, the president drafted a personal message to President Kalinin of the U.S.S.R. and waited until Secretary Hull returned to the city that afternoon, when they edited it.

The message, Mr. Roosevelt said, expressed hope that nothing would occur to disturb Baltic peace or Finland's independence.

It was sent to Moscow that afternoon. It was not given to the press at that time, however, because action had not been completed. Not Turn to page 2 col. 3

Labor Board Scored at CIO Convention; Lewis Reelection Is Indicated

San Francisco—(P)—John L. Lewis was reelected president of the CIO by acclamation today after a raucous 32-minute demonstration.

"It is no secret to some of you that I came to this convention with the hope that you would select another president than myself," Lewis said in accepting.

San Francisco—(P)—The CIO second annual convention prepared today to elect officers and perhaps clear its calendar and adjourn one day ahead of schedule, after condemning the national labor relations board's administration of the Wagner act.

Delegates indicated off the record that John L. Lewis, who has headed the CIO since it broke with the A.F. of L. four years ago, would be returned to the president's office.

Many delegates said that Vice President Philip Murray, head of the Steel Workers' organizing committee, and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, would have little if any opposition if they were nominated for reelection.

Dinneen Perjury Case Hearing Is Postponed

Madison—(P)—Superior Judge Roy H. Proctor announced today the preliminary hearing on a perjury charge for William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the state public service commission, has been postponed to Oct. 24.

Judge Proctor said Assistant Attorney General Newell S. Boardman and Ray McCann, Milwaukee, defense counsel, requested the delay. The hearing was scheduled for today.

Britons Believe Germany Now Convinced England Will Fight To Bitter End if Necessary

Berlin—(P)—Informed quarters reported tonight that Germany was exchanging views with Soviet Russia and Italy through her ambassadors following Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's peace proposals.

It was indicated Germany's next major war move would be taken after these consultations, which were understood to have started today.

London—(P)—Informed Britons voiced belief today that Prime Minister Chamberlain, who brought assurance from Munich a year ago that there would be "peace in our time," finally had convinced Germany that if necessary Britain would fight to the bitter end.

There was no immediate reaction to a German statement to the foreign press in which Adolf Hitler was represented as having President Roosevelt to urge the British government to enter a peace conference with Germany.

The man in the street felt that following his prime minister's rejection of Hitler's peace terms before the house of commons yesterday, the only doors left open were those leading to air raid shelters.

Chamberlain made ready to follow up his fighting speech with a radio broadcast to the empire, possibly tomorrow night. The speech, which is to be relayed also to the United States, was expected to hammer the point brought out yesterday that "it is for Germany to make her choice."

It was stated authoritatively, however, that broadcasting plans were not definite since it was believed Chamberlain's speech was so well received that immediate amplification or a general statement might be unnecessary.

British diplomacy appeared to observers to be centered on placing responsibility for continuation of the war on the German government.

The press gave unanimous approval to Chamberlain's declaration that "acts—not words alone—must be forthcoming from the nazis before Britain and France would lay down arms."

Berlin—(P)—The German government took the stand today that British Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection of Adolf Hitler's peace overtures means "war against the German people, war against the German reich until annihilation."

The statement was issued in the form of an official press release on Turn to page 2 col. 5

American Liner Saves 36 Britons

Rescues Crew of Freighter
While Speeding to Burning French Tanker

BULLETIN
London—(P)—The British admiralty announced that the British navy's patrols had sunk two German submarines today. The announcement was accompanied by the comment that Friday the thirteenth had "proved unlucky" for German submarines.

"Some survivors," the statement said, were rescued by the submarine hunting craft.

New York—(P)—The American liner President Harding radioed today that she had rescued the crew of 36 of the British freighter Heronspool while proceeding to aid the attacked French tanker W. Emile Miguet. The Heronspool was sunk off the Irish coast. The Harding said it found the tanker in flames. The crew apparently had drowned.

Captain James E. Roberts sent the following message to the United States lines in New York:

"At 2:10 p.m. (1:10 p.m. C.S.T.) Thursday responded to SOS from French tanker W. Emile Miguet in latitude 50.08 north longitude 14 west. At 1:50 a.m. sighted and rescued crew of 36 in boat from British steamer Heronspool. None missing. Reached W. Emile Miguet at 9:37 a.m."

Gen Salesman Reports Robbery of $130,000

Cincinnati—(P)—Cincinnati police broadcast today that three robbers had kidnaped a New York gem salesman and fled with diamonds valued at $130,000.

Police broadcast a description of the robbers, with the information they had fled in a sedan bearing Indiana license.

Sergeant P. Davis, 45, the salesman, told Sergeant George Wessel that two of the men seized him as he walked from the offices of a wholesale gem firm to the downtown station, and threw him into a waiting car at the wheel of which a third man sat. He was driven about six blocks, he reported.

President Refuses to Comment on In- formal Bids OUTLOOK DARK

Reich Press Chief in Bitter Attack on Chamberlain

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt has received no official word from the German government on suggestions in Berlin that he act as mediator in an effort to end the war in Europe, he said today. He refused to comment on the informal peace bids from the nazi capital.

(In Berlin, however, authorized nazis said any neutral action must come in response to Hitler's reichstag speech and not as a result of any diplomatic action or request from Germany.)

Mr. Roosevelt's remark that he had nothing to say on German peace overtures came after a reporter said Hitler would like to see this country settle "the European hash" and asked whether the president intended to do anything about it.

On war problems more close to home, the president said that the government had received unverified rumors that Italian tankers had been refueling a foreign submarine in the south Atlantic, but the story had not been given out officially, he emphasized, because it was not in verifiable form.

Keeps Press Informed
The chief executive made this comment in response to a question. He said it was a good example of the administration's honest effort to tell the press everything that properly can be told.

It meant, he added, that he was not giving to the press unverified rumors of all kinds that come in every day.

Stories given out about foreign submarines in the past have been verified, fully, he said. Stories not given out, he explained, were of the type brought in by German fishermen who say they have just seen a submarine.

Adolf Hitler's indirect suggestion that President Roosevelt advise Great Britain to meet Germany in conference today two immediate obstacles.

One was that no formal request has been made for American mediation or intervention in the European war.

The other was a feeling in many quarters that the United States government would want the advance assent of Great Britain and France to any such proposal, even if Germany should ask the president directly to try to bring the opposing sides together.

German Suggestions
Previous suggestions of a similar nature have been made by the controlled press in Germany. When Mr. Roosevelt was questioned about them Tuesday, he replied he had received no request from abroad.

Hitler's views were given to foreign correspondents in Berlin early today by Dr. Otto Dietrich, press chief. The correspondents told that Germany would unleash a "war in earnest" against Great Britain and France unless there was an indication Mr. Roosevelt would tell Prime Minister Chamberlain he must express a willingness to meet Germany in conference.

Authoritative sources in the capital pointed out that the United States always has taken the position it was ready and willing to help Europe reach a general understanding on economic and disarmament questions, but that it had no intention of being drawn into European political disputes.

Sensors have differed on the wisdom of Mr. Roosevelt's acting as mediator, but a strong sentiment Turn to page 4 col. 9

U. S. Studies Plans For Financial Aid To Latin America

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt said today that plans to use part of this country's idle gold to stabilize the credit facilities of Latin American financial institutions had been under study for some time.

In one or two instances, he told a press conference, such plans were almost in the negotiation stage.

He made this statement when asked to comment on a suggestion by Senator LaFollette (R-Wis.) that some of this nation's gold should be used not only for direct investments but for assisting the local credit facilities of Latin American countries through stabilization of their banks.

The question had been under study for several years, Mr. Roosevelt said, and was under continued study with a view to taking some definite action. He did not name the one or two countries with which negotiations were about to begin.

Fiscal officials later suggested, however, that the president probably was referring to Brazil and Puerto Rico.

Neutral Zones' Up To Belligerents, British Position

Admiralty Says Warring Powers to Decide on Restrictions

London—(P)—British admiralty spokesmen, commenting on the Pan-American conference participated in by the United States and Latin American countries as "unofficial," but in a formal statement asserted:

"It is understood that the zone is in no way intended as an extension of territorial waters, but belligerents are to be invited to accept the limitation of their operations. . . . This is clearly the wisest way of proceeding since while belligerents and particularly the allies may be anxious to assist all neutral countries. . . it must be for them to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well-established rights."

The admiralty spokesmen termed the reports of action taken at the Panama City conference participated in by the United States and Latin American countries as "unofficial," but in a formal statement asserted:

"The declaration of Panama" establishing a neutral zone at sea around the Americas was dispatched officially Oct. 4 to France, England and Germany.)

History Cited
The admiralty statement went into detail in relating the history of disputes over the rights of neutrals and belligerents in extending territorial waters.

It pointed out that during prohibition Great Britain and America "declared that it was their firm intention to uphold the principle that three marine miles extending from the coastline outwards and measured from low-water mark should constitute the proper limits of territorial waters."

(The "neutral zone" created at the Pan-American conference in some cases extend several hundred miles from land.)

The admiralty concluded: "The width of . . . territorial waters is now widely accepted as being three miles. Great Britain in common with many other countries has long refused to recognize claims to a territorial belt of great width."

Senator Forfeits Bail By Failure to Appear

Madison—(P)—State Senator A. J. Connors (P), Barron, forfeited $100 bail today when he failed to appear in superior court to answer a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

The senator's attorney, Edwin M. Wilkie, told Rodney Burgenske, of the Dane county traffic department, when he posted the bail that Connors would not contest the action.

Sergeant O. F. Larson filed the complaint and served the warrant on Connors at a hospital where he had been confined since Oct. 4 when he was injured in a traffic accident near here.

The Correct Way To Dream

"Financial conditions only need a lively imagination to bring general and steady improvement," said a noted industrialist recently. So, suppose you'd like to own a fine motor car. Then just imagine you've won $100,000 in a puzzle contest and a half million on the Stock Exchange. Next, study the Used Cars listed in The Post-Crescent classified want-ads, and no doubt your imagination will turn into fact. Here's an ad that brought wide-awake success:

Ex-Communist Says Rothstein, Slain Gambler, Loaned $1,750,000, to Red-Dominated Union

Washington—(P)—A former charter member of the American Communist party told the house committee investigating un-Americanism today that Arnold Rothstein, slain New York gambler, loaned the Communist-dominated Furriers' union about $1,750,000 in 1926, some of which went to New York policemen.

The witness, Maurice L. Malkin, Russian-born, naturalized American citizen, testified that $110,000 was paid to policemen in a 17-week period during the 1926 furriers' strike for keeping away from the union's "sluggers."

Malkin, who testified he was a member of the Communist party from its inception in 1920 until 1936, said he was sent to Sing Sing upon conviction of felonious assault, growing out of the furriers' strike, in which several persons were injured.

The witness said these officers were among those paid with Rothstein's money.

Johnny Broderick, whom he identified as "chief of the gangster squad," Jesse Josephs, Broderick's assistant; Barney Ruditsky and men he named as Curly and Boyle.

After identifying his Communist party membership card and other "credentials," Malkin told the committee that after the Communists gained control of the furriers' union, the leadership retained the law firm of Snitkin and Goodman to help with plans for the strike.

He said the attorneys "put us in touch" with Rothstein, later slain in a New York hotel.

In response to questions from J. B. Matthews, committee investigator, Malkin said copies of receipts for money loaned to the union were found in Rothstein's possession after his death.

Malkin said that, in addition to furnishing money to the union, Rothstein was "supposed to put us in touch with the New York gangsters who were supposed to do the guerrilla work" for the union.

Questioned about his conviction, Malkin said he was chairman of the "out-of-town committee" for a strike at a plant in Rockville Center. Turn to page 4 col. 2

250,000 Hunters Await Opening of Season Saturday

Game Plentiful but Birds Scattered Because of Recent Dry Weather

MADISON — (P) — Assurance that Wisconsin's upland wild game crop was the biggest in years came from the state conservation department as an estimated 250,000 hunters eagerly awaited tomorrow's opening of the annual season.

William F. Grimmer, game division superintendent, said pheasants, ruffed grouse, prairie chicken, Hungarian partridge, squirrels and deer were plentiful, but that birds were scattered due to dry weather.

While conservation officials urged use of dogs to avoid loss of crippled birds, Dr. V. S. Larson, of the state livestock sanitation division, warned against violation of rabies quarantines in force in several areas.

Dr. Larson said officials and many hunters appealed for relaxation of quarantine regulations, and that he replied informally the department would do nothing to interfere with use of dogs that were securely muzzled.

Must Enforce Law
"Any hunter should realize he might as well leave his dog at home under such conditions," Dr. Larson said. "A muzzled dog on leash isn't going to be much help in locating or retrieving birds."

"The department," he added, "has taken a very conservative course in issuing the orders to avoid inconvenience to hunters, acting only on recommendation of local health authorities, and it will be forced to take action on any reported violations."

Areas under quarantine include parts of Milwaukee, Kenosha, Eau Claire, Dane, Dodge and Racine counties.

Pheasants, which Grimmer expected to bear the brunt of the first bombardment, have taken refuge in large numbers he said in marshes which last year were partly or wholly flooded. Surveys by conservation wardens disclosed other flocks in coverts bordering tillable land.

Ruffed grouse and prairie chicken, Grimmer said, have made good comeback after disaster and cyclical factors forced restriction on hunting for several seasons. Longer seasons reflect the upturn.

Pheasant Season
The pheasant season will open tomorrow afternoon in 61 counties. It will continue for three weeks in 49 central and southern counties, and for two weeks in 12 northern counties. The bag limit is two a day, the possession limit four. Only the cocks may be taken.

Ruffed grouse (partridge) shooting will begin in 43 counties; in 24 of a central block for three weeks. In 19 of a northern block, where a split season allowed one week of hunting earlier, the shooting will end Oct. 27.

Under similar circumstances, 18 counties will have a three week season on prairie chickens while in 21 counties, where the birds also are hunted earlier, the shooting will be resumed for only two weeks.

In 12 southern and southeastern counties the hunter may take Hungarian partridge for three weeks beginning tomorrow afternoon.

Shooting Hours
On all upland birds, shooting hours after tomorrow will be 7 a. m. to 4 o'clock p. m. The daily bag limit is four, and the possession limit eight.

Bob white quail, are protected throughout the state. A one-month season of woodcock, which frequent areas in which partridge and prairie chickens are found, opened Oct. 1. Generally, however, hunters are urged to limit their shooting to time to time have found foliage too heavy for successful shooting.

Regulations on the squirrel season, opening tomorrow in 55 counties, allow a daily bag of five and possession of ten. The season ends Dec. 1. Rabbits are protected until Oct. 28.

Hunting deer with bow and arrow will begin tomorrow in 14 counties, ending Nov. 12, well ahead of the Nov. 25 date on which gun users may go afield.

State Postmasters Lose Member Prize
Washington — (P) — Michigan won the sectional membership prize from Wisconsin as postmasters ended their national convention yesterday.

The award, a 100-pound Wisconsin cheese, was presented by John T. Murphy, of Delavan, Wis., president of the state postmasters association, to H. J. Maurer of Monroe, Mich., head of the Michigan unit.

Michigan had obtained 100 per cent membership, while 85 per cent of the Badger postmasters joined.

Embargo Offers Aggressors Aid, Sen. Taft Thinks

besides repealing the arms embargo, would forbid American ships and citizens to visit belligerent nations and their possessions.

Several senators have contended that this provision would wipe the growing American merchant marine from the seas, since it would block trade with British colonies as well as the warring countries in Europe.

LaFollette Demand
Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) held the senate floor much of yesterday with a demand that the measure be amended to prevent "valuable and necessary products" from being drained away to warring countries.

He said imposition of trade quotas would accomplish this result. LaFollette told the chamber he had stood on the senate floor in 1917 when his father, "Old Bob" LaFollette, had opposed the highly-controversial bill to permit arming of American merchant ships.

"I had heard rumors in the cloak-rooms," he shouted. "I knew that certain gentlemen on this floor were armed. I saw a rush around my father when he got to his feet. I know how tense men's emotions can get."

"And I say that now is the time to discuss the fundamental problems that are hanging in the balance." Once, Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) interrupted to ask whether LaFollette's stand was consistent with his views on previous issues, inasmuch as he usually has supported the administration. LaFollette responded:

Would Amend Bill
"Anybody can embarrass me on how I voted on a whole lot of things since this administration came to power." The galleries laughed.

LaFollette served notice that he would ask the senate later to amend the administration bill so that trade quotas would prevent "valuable and necessary products" from being drained away.

During LaFollette's recital of the nation's war resources, Senator Lundeen (F.L.-Minn.) arose and remarked that the United States also had the largest number of "international meddlers" in the world who, if allowed to have their way in the present world crisis, would ruin the United States' enviable position.

LaFollette declared that a vote to repeal the arms embargo would be taken by "the interventionists in this country as a vote of confidence in their effort to get us into the war, and it will be so interpreted in England and France as well as by the speculative element in the stock market."

Predicts Pressure
He said repeal of the embargo would amount to taking sides with the allies against Germany and that, once this was done, the pressure to aid England and France with money and men would become terrific.

LaFollette contended that the administration proposal to sell goods to belligerent governments on a 90-day credit basis and require them to transport purchases in non-American ships was not in reality a "cash and carry" proposal because the 90-day credit "would not be cash."

"It would involve an enormous amount of real non-interventionist policing to prevent 90-day credit from becoming a renewable credit, a loan, the very thing it is claimed the bill prevents," he added. "This weakness is seen by senators on the other side of the embargo question. We are not the only ones who see it."

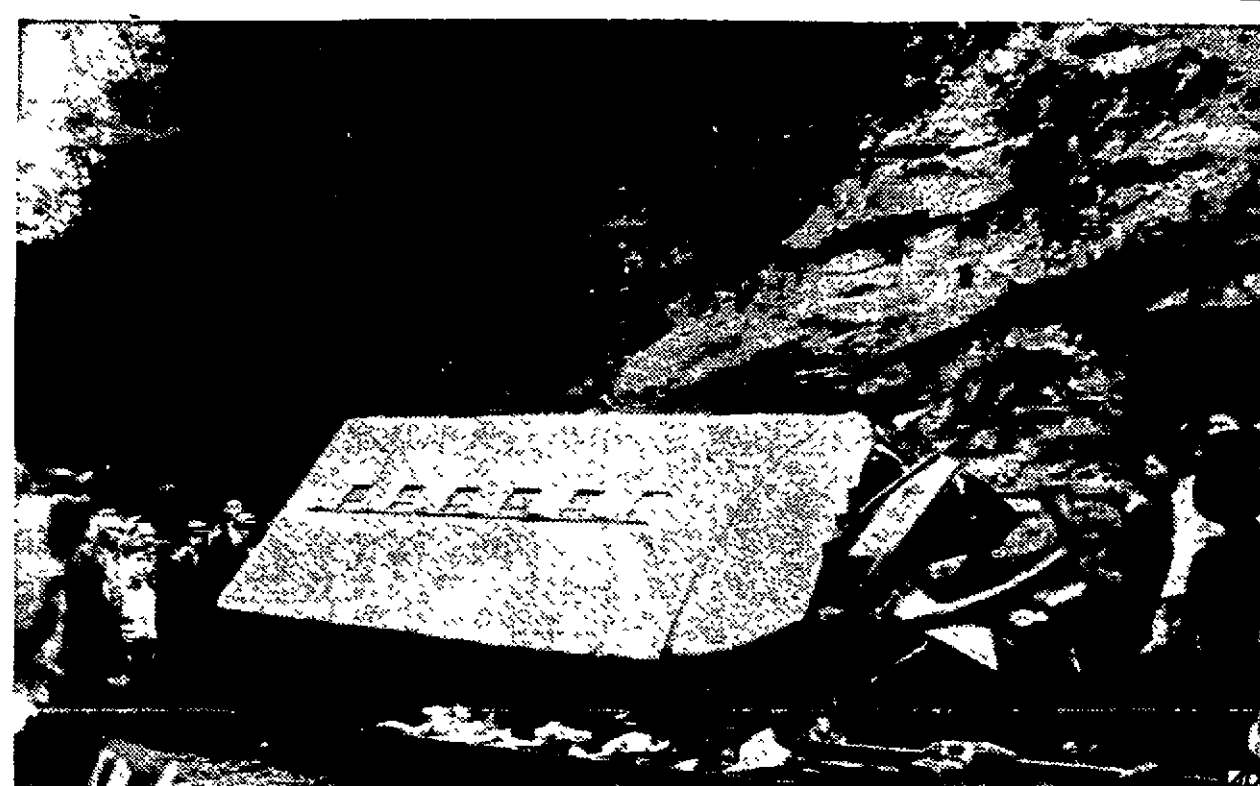

The Wisconsin senator declared that every bill introduced with administration approval from 1935 to date had been full of "discretionary loopholes" which would have left the president "a large opportunity to throw the weight of this nation behind favored belligerents."

He said it was hard to reconcile such legislation with the administration's opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment requiring an affirmative vote of the people before the nation could engage in a foreign war. The administration had opposed that amendment, LaFollette said, on the ground that congress and not the people should alone have the power to declare an overseas war.

Steve Cygan Dies; Fellow Prisoners On Sympathy Strike

Chicago — (P) — Steve Cygan paid the state with his life today for the murder of a policeman in 1928.

He was electrocuted at Cook county jail, maintaining his innocence to the last. Blindfolded, having refused a last meal, he was strapped in the electric chair and the current turned on at 12:01 a. m.

Five physicians pronounced him dead at 12:07.

Twenty-two fellow-prisoners in his cell block staged a sympathy hunger strike, declining lunch or dinner yesterday, and maintaining, as one of them said, that "Steve got a bum rap."

Cygan, who was 36, was convicted of murdering policeman John Chiska April 5, 1928, in a shooting that occurred when the policeman attempted to question Cygan and two companions about the robbery of a store.

He was not arrested for the crime until June 20, 1928, when he left the state prison at Jackson, Mich., on parole. He had been serving a term there for robbery under the name of Ray Smith. Fingerprints established his identity.

Yesterday Gov. Henry Horner, acting on recommendation of the state pardon board, declined to commute the death sentence.

Hour's Conference
The Finns were closeted for an hour at the Kremlin with Josef Stalin, Foreign Commissar-Venier Vyacheslav Molotov, Assistant Foreign Commissar Vladimir Potemkin and Vladimir Derevianski, Russian minister to Poland up to the time of the Russian-German partition of that nation.

This conference was in the nature of a preliminary for conversations to come. Dr. Paasikivi and his two colleagues, Finnish foreign office experts, were invited to a second session today.

While it seemed obvious that the Finns were willing to listen to soviet proposals with a promise of relaying them to the Finnish government, it was indicated at the same time that Finland would not surrender to any demands considered "extreme."

(The Finnish stand was emphasized early today in a five-minute broadcast to Scandinavian countries by Finnish Foreign Minister Elias Erkko.)

(Erkko declared that Finnish preparedness moves were "intended to show that she (Finland) cannot submit or comply with dictates of an outside factor which would result in her international and political activity being dependent on something other than her own free will.")

The Finns, it was reported, might be willing to give up some islands but if the Russians submitted stronger territorial demands likely to make Finland a virtual protectorate—such as has been done with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—foreign observers were of the opinion the Finns would fight.

Another Insurance Slayer Is Sentenced

Cape May Court House, N. J. — (P) — Dominic Rodio, 51, Philadelphia shoemaker, was convicted today of first-degree murder in the "three-men-in-a-boat" drowning of Joseph Arena, and was sentenced immediately to life imprisonment.

The two-day trial was an outgrowth of the Philadelphia murder-for-insurance investigation. Rodio repudiated an alleged confession that he pushed Arena out of a boat while crabbing off Sea Isle City in 1932 with another Philadelphiaan, Steve Crispino.

The state charged that $3,200 insurance on Arena's life was split by heads of the Philadelphia murder ring, but that Rodio got a small part of it and Arena's widow none.

Britons Believe Germany Now Convinced England Will Fight To Bitter End if Necessary

Chamberlain's speech to the house of commons yesterday. It was handed to foreign correspondents during the daily press conference.

It reads as follows:
"Chamberlain's speech is an unheard of insult to Germany. Indulging in unbelievably insolent aspersions on the German reich and its policy, Chamberlain in his speech rejected the hand of peace outstretched to him by the fuhrer."

"Chamberlain evidently did not want to understand the fuhrer's great action, springing from his consciousness of responsibility."

"While Germany wants peace, while the fuhrer made constructive proposals for building up a peaceful, secure Europe, Chamberlain and his clique desired war."

Attack 'Small Clique'
"In his speech, he did not represent the cause of the people but the cause of a small clique which sees its task in war. This (yesterday) afternoon, Chamberlain not only before the lower house (commons), but before the entire world, rejected Germany's hand of peace and thereby gave an answer to the appeal which the fuhrer made in his speech Oct. 6 when he said:

"May those peoples and their leaders now speak up who are of a similar mind and may those reject my hand who believe they must see war as a better solution."

"Chamberlain and his followers have decided in favor of the latter. "After this speech by the English prime minister, there can no longer exist any doubt among the German people that no matter what we do, what we say, what we offer, Chamberlain and the war inciters of Great Britain are determined at the same time that they utter hypocritical phrases—to annihilate the German people."

"Chamberlain's speech reveals the real meaning of England's war aims and this meaning is: War against the German people, war against the German reich upon annihilation. The speech of the English premier is built upon lies and climaxed in a lie."

"England Wanted War"
"And while charging German policy with breaking (Germany's) word, he forgets that the world knows that England's world empire is built solely on force and lie. England wanted the war. To be sure, the English prime minister repeated all attempts in recent times to bring about peace."

"Although he knows better, he

Walter Brewery Boosts Storage

Remodeling Job Will Increase Capacity of Plant by One Third

Remodeling work designed to increase the storage capacity about one third has been started at the George Walter Brewing company, 210-220 Walnut street, according to Nic Dohr, president and manager.

The Miron Construction company is doing the remodeling which includes the installation of cork on the walls and ceilings for insulation. An ice machine will be installed by the Welter Manufacturing company, Milwaukee, to cool the air in the storage area.

The work, estimated to cost $15,000, will increase the storage capacity of the plant from 6,000 barrels to 9,000. Storage tanks will be supplied by the Dunk Tank company, Milwaukee.

The job is scheduled for completion about Jan. 1, Dohr said.

Aeschylus, Greek dramatist, is considered the originator of the stage tragedy.

Peace Appeal to Roosevelt Is Indirect but It Smacks Of Herr Hitler's Language

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (P) — This is indeed Friday the 13th for Europe, as latest developments point to the prospects of a wholly nasty winter for the old world.

British Premier Chamberlain's rejection of Herr Hitler's peace proposals, while apparently leaving the door open a wee crack for further German overtures, put the Nazi chieftain in the position of taking immediate action on these hard alternatives.

To get ahead at once with the war and try to fight his way through the British naval blockade which is calculated to strangle him and is his greatest danger at the moment, or

To try to do the hat-trick and pull out another peace-scheme which might interest the Anglo-French allies.

Herr Hitler chose the latter course, and adopted the extreme measure of appealing to President Roosevelt to offer mediation.

This appeal was indirect, to be sure, but it nevertheless bore the official stamp since it was given out to newspaper correspondents by Dr. Otto Dietrich, German press chief, who is one of the fuhrer's closest advisers and had been closeted with the Nazi leader for a long conference.

Dr. Dietrich, whom I always have found mild-mannered and suave, apparently was almost fierce in indicating that Germany held the possibility of United States mediation to be the last chance of saving Europe from "the most gruesome bloodbath in history." One ventures to say that such language sounds more like Herr Hitler speaking than Dr. Dietrich.

In considering the implications of this appeal, one gets two distinct impressions.

Hitler Anxious?
The first is that Hitler really is exceedingly anxious to obtain peace.

He has indicated his reasons are that he wants to prevent useless bloodshed and destruction. Many observers, however, say the thing cuts deeper than that.

For one thing, the belief is growing in Europe that Russia, while cooperating now with Germany, represents a grave danger to the peace.

Permanent Peace Problem Still Is Left Unanswered

Hitler, Chamberlain Statements Reveal Stalemate, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Prime Minister Chamberlain said what many expected him to say, but there is no concealing the fact that the speech was disappointing in that it failed to give a positive program for a road to peace.

That Britain and France must have guarantees, and that there must be some assurance against a recurrence of the conquest-by-threat idea, which has kept Europe in a constant state of unrest for the last three years, has been accepted as essential to any peace settlement. But the question left unanswered by the British prime minister and the French premier is what formula is to be offered the world for the settlement of territorial disputes.

Herr Hitler says his method is to take by force what he believes has been wrested from Germany by force. Mr. Chamberlain says Britain cannot recognize seizures by force and that reason and negotiation must supersede coercion.

These two viewpoints reveal a stalemate which some day must be broken. Will any of the belligerents—Britain or France or Germany—suggest the solution? Certainly no neutral government dares to do it now. But, if professions of concern about saving human lives are to be taken seriously, whether in London or Paris or Berlin, or in neutral capitals, somebody has to come forward with a plan to secure international justice by some method other than force.

Concessions
The record shows that, since the Versailles treaty of 1919 was adopted, no important concession of territory or economic resources has been made by the victorious powers of the last war. Many people on the allied side insist that a defeated government and defeated nation does not deserve any revision of a treaty, and that the Versailles pact was fit punishment for the aggressors of 1914, just as relentless war is advocated as a means of punishing the aggressors of 1939.

But, to the German mind, there is no logic in the contention, on the one hand, that a nation must remain in permanent subjugation, and that, on the other hand, it has no inherent right to use physical force when negotiation has failed to produce revision.

Efforts to convince the German people that the present war is an unjust adventure on the part of a misguided ruler like Hitler will not get very far so long as Britain and France do not offer the German nation any concessions or any program for assuring them the "living space" which disinterested economists insist is necessary for a prosperous and orderly Germany.

Germans And Hitlerism
The British, at the outset of the present war, showed their awareness of the importance of separating the German people from Hitlerism. Leaflets were distributed by airplane and there has been a great deal done by Britain and France to reach the German rank and file. Yet, in the absence of any affirmative program by the British and French, the German people will look askance at efforts to persuade them to overthrow Hitlerism.

What the allies have failed thus far to do is to reveal how the German nation would be better off without Hitler than with him. Although that piece of strategy is apparent in every speech declaring that Hitlerism must be extinguished, no method of alleviating economic distress, which has been the true cause of the rise of fascism in Germany, has been projected.

All Europe today is threatened by the might-makes-right theory, largely because the "have" countries in the last 20 years have shown no signs of removing by peaceful means the factors in the "have-not" countries which have led to social and economic disturbances. Maybe the British and French spokesmen have it in mind sooner or later to proclaim war aims—or, rather, peace aims, as they might better be called—but continued silence on these points is not helping to shorten the war, even if one assumes it can only end in the overthrow of Hitler by the German people.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LITTMAN

The Paramount Issue of the War

There has been no more ominous events during this war than the news that Stalin has demands on Finland, and that he is compelling the Finns to negotiate with a Red army massed on their frontier. To be sure, it is not yet known what Stalin will ask when the Finnish envoy arrives in Moscow. But it is very sinister indeed that he should make any demands at all under threat of military action.

For the case of Finland is altogether different from that of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, where Stalin has established himself in the past few weeks. The small states on the southern shore of the Baltic are a highway along which Germany has in the past and might again invade Russia. But Finland cannot be used as the jumping-off place for an invasion of Russia, particularly now that Russia has ice-free naval bases on the southern shore of the Baltic sea. If Stalin has serious demands to make on Finland, it is only too probable that they relate to the Aland Islands and to the Finnish port in northern Scandinavia.

The Aland Islands, which belong to Finland, are the strategic key to the whole Scandinavian peninsula; they are to the defense of Sweden what Panama is to the United States. If Stalin obtains the Aland Islands, it would mean that he has undertaken to realize one of the oldest ambitions of Russian imperialism, the domination of Sweden and Norway for the purpose of making Russia a maritime power in the North Atlantic ocean. And so, whereas the Estonian and Latvian advance has been essentially defensive, the pressure on Finland forebodes a plan not merely to control the inland Baltic but to break through on to the high seas.

Thus the shadow of Russian imperialism has now been cast over the Scandinavian countries. There is now at stake the very independence, and with it the liberties of the northern democracies, the most genuinely neutral pacific countries in Europe with the exception of Switzerland and the Netherlands. Here in the making there is one of the most dreadful catastrophes which has menaced western civilization since the armed might of Islam invaded Europe. For in no other region of the world is the western conception of life with its respect for the dignity of the human soul more deeply established than it is in the Scandinavian countries. If they now have to fight for their independence against Russian Bolshevism, they will certainly be resisting the advance of another Genghis Khan, and, incidentally, the idea of denying them the right to buy arms to defend themselves will seem to most Americans a very curious way indeed of promoting peace and security.

Advances of Bolshevism
Becomes Real Issue
The very fact that all of Scandinavia now feels itself threatened makes much clearer than it has ever been before the real issue in this war. The question is not what are to be the boundaries of Germany or of Poland or of Czechoslovakia. The question is what shall be the boundary of Europe against the expanding invasion of Russian imperialism. Bolshevism, the supreme issue of the war is whether Germany is to return to the society of western nations as a defender of the west or whether revolutionary Nazism is to break down all the remaining defense of western Europe.

Until a year ago those defenses were still intact. Between Germany and Russia, between Europe and Bolshevism, there existed a barrier of independent peoples, the Baltic nations, the Poles, the Czechs, the Rumanians. Many things can be said in criticism of the governments and the policies of these border nations; but one thing is certain, in some form or other the existence of these nations is as necessary to the security of Germany as it is to that of the rest of Europe. What Hitler has done, especially since the seizure of Czechoslovakia, is to destroy the barrier, to undermine by subversive revolutionary intrigue the social structure of the borderland, and then to annihilate these national states by military attack. This, as has often been said, is one of those blunders that are more than a crime, and if further proof were needed of the catastrophe which Hitler has produced, it would be the spectacle of the hasty and humiliating exodus of the Germans of the Baltic states fleeing before the Bolshevik advance.

It is in the light of this appalling situation that the world has to examine Hitler's plea for an armistice. The fundamental question is whether the Nazis, who have knocked down the barrier against Bolshevism, could, even if they wanted to do it, disentangle themselves from the Russian partnership and reconstitute an effective resistance to the Russian advance. The question goes deeper than whether Hitler's word can be trusted, deeper even than the question of whether Hitler has renounced or could renounce further aggression. The question is whether the Nazi regime can ever again restore a barrier against the Bolshevik invasion in the European borderland.

The best way to test this question is to ask whether Hitler would as a matter of fact restore any kind of Polish and Czech state that had any independent vitality, and, therefore, any capacity to resist and repel the westward advance of revolution. Obviously, as long as the Nazi police rule those nations, they will be anti-German, and they will be organizing revolution to get rid of their conquerors. If, on the other hand, Hitler actually withdrew—something as yet unimaginable—he would leave these nations prostrated and dismembered. Their governing classes are in exile or are nervously broken or are dead; their economy is shattered and their social organization is disrupted. In withdrawing now Hitler would leave behind him a chaos of seething misery into which revolutionary Bolshevism would advance with little resistance.

What has been destroyed cannot quickly be rebuilt. The fact is that although Poland and Czechoslovakia must be reconstituted in the interest of Germany and of Europe, in the face of the Russian development they cannot now be reconstituted, except under German protection. But Nazism is incapable of providing this German protection to the borderland people of central Europe. It is incapable of doing this because the Nazi regime has destroyed the barrier states, because it is irretrievably compromised by the alliance with Bolshevism itself, and because the Nazi antagonism to the whole traditional social structure of Europe, to private property, to national rights and to the religious devotion to the human personality, destroys every institution that can hope to resist the advance of Bolshevism.

There can be no safety for Germany or for Europe except through a Germany capable of becoming the protector of the European borderland. There is and always has been such a Germany; whether it can emerge and take command before the situation becomes utterly catastrophic is the great question of our time.

More specifically, the question is whether this Germany will emerge before or after Hitler stakes everything on a gigantic, desperate and suicidal offensive in the west. For in such an offensive not only he himself but Germany and Europe would be defeated even more disastrously, no matter what the outcome of the battles, than he and Germany and Europe have been defeated by the disastrous victory in Poland. This is what the Allies have now to make clear to Germany. They will have to do it not merely in the form of rhetorical public statements, but in the form of direct private approaches to the German army and to all that is genuinely conservative inside of Germany. If they convince the Germans that a western offensive cannot be decisive and that the creation of a strong conservative Germany is their only real war aim, they may yet save the world from great danger and incalculable misery.

Return to Winter Delivery Schedule

Appleton milk dealers this month are returning to their winter schedule of milk deliveries in the city. During the summer dealers make it a practice to have all milk delivered before breakfast, while in winter they make deliveries after breakfast. This facilitates winter deliveries which might be held up because of snow-clogged streets during the early hours. Another reason for the late winter deliveries is that there is less chance for milk in bottles to become frozen.

Fire Prevention Talk Given To Waupaca High Students

Waupaca — G. S. Kessler, supervisor of fire prevention of the safety division of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, visited the Waupaca High school Thursday afternoon and gave a talk before the assembly on preventing home fires. He said that men are safer at their work since common safeguards against fire are required by law in working establishments, but there are no laws which apply to homes in this respect.

Mr. Kessler had charts and actual demonstration with fire to show the dangers encountered in using kerosene, gasoline, and other inflammable liquids. He had a chart of statistics showing that from 1922-1937 the United States has had 181 needless explosions of stoves and lamps which took human lives; 146 explosions resulting from starting fires with kerosene with 253 deaths.

By allowing two drops of gasoline to vaporize and explode in a copper cylinder, Mr. Kessler emphasized the danger of small amounts of such liquids and the vapors that form from them. Like a car which is "flooded," he couldn't get five drops of gasoline to explode.

"Though you can put out a match in cold kerosene," when it's warmer, kerosene "is the same as gasoline," he said. Kerosene or gasoline vapors rising from a skillet can be ignited several inches away from the skillet. Putting a cover over a flame is a simple and sure way of putting it out because air is necessary for fire.

After Mr. Kessler's demonstrations, Superintendent Lester Emans gave students explicit instructions for leaving the assembly in case of fire drill or fire. He requested students to make sure of the fire instructions for every room in a period of the day. The fire drill last week cleared the high school building in 55 seconds.

THE GOAT WHO WAS BENEFACTOR

There was an ironic turn to the fact that Count Johann von Bernstorff, ambassador from the Reich to this country during World War No. 1, died in exile though not far from the land he had served so faithfully and with such high intelligence.

The private archives that were published when Germany became a republic revealed that von Bernstorff would have guided the German diplomacy well and that von Bethmann-Hollweg, German chancellor, guided it ill.

The chancellor, sitting in Berlin, wired von Bernstorff, sitting in Washington, that "we have determined to run this risk" in explanation of unrestricted submarine warfare and in the conviction that America would not enter the war, or if it did, could not do anything effective to alter or determine its course.

But the ambassador, sitting in Washington, had formed a wholly different conclusion about America and its potentialities. He cabled back that in the then condition of the American mind unrestricted submarine warfare meant a declaration of war from this country, the taking over of numerous German merchant ships interned in our ports, and that America would never enter any fray and take a minor part.

And von Bernstorff had to accept the bitter denunciation aimed at him by Germany for not more intelligently guiding his own country concerning the American possibilities which he accepted in silence paying skrycke to the unwritten rule of secrecy in such affairs.

His voluntary exile from Germany indicates his antipathy toward the regime prevailing there. But since he was afflicted with the dangerous gift of candid speech he may have saved himself the pain of dying in a concentration camp.

His death emphasized the cruel uncertainties and rank injustices of war for had his opinion been accepted that war would have become a stalemate and been adjusted without victory to anyone, the best sort of adjustment in Europe since no victor seems able to act with magnanimity.

KILLING OFF THE BEST

"I see them in foul dug-outs, gnawed by rats.
And in the ruined trenches, lashed by rain.
Dreaming of things they did with balls and bats,
And mocked by hopeless longing to regain
Bank-holidays, and picture shows and spats,
And going to the office in the train."

Sir Frederick Banting whose name will forever grace the pages of man's benefactors has become again a captain in the Canadian army.

Banting discovered Insulin. Time will associate him with Pasteur who cured rabies, Ehrlich who cured syphilis and Gorgas who whipped Yellow Jack.

And this little item about Dr. Banting going back to war leads to strange but interesting reflections. For he served in World War No. 1 and was decorated for gallantry in action. He stuck up in the trenches for three years. In the rain, the sleet, eating cold canned meat and sleeping with rats. And suppose he had been killed—what of insulin then? What of the relief brought to many millions of people through the marvelous discovery worked out by his patient and tireless brain?

That question leads to other questions concerning this scourge of war and its almost invariable rule of taking the young and the best. Among those 10,000 slain in the German army in Poland perhaps there was another Ehrlich. Among the tens of thousands of Poles killed by falling walls and splintering shells or taken by the diseases that follow upon hardship and exposure may have been another Madame Curie, that remarkable Polish woman whose almost divinely inspired genius made "adium the instrument of health it is today.

It is not only that war kills off the young, the strong, the vigorous and the ambitious but the imagination may well and properly consider how this legalized murder on a large scale may interfere with the course of the human race if it be considered that that course has something of planning in it instead of only a haphazard way.

We will never know what remarkable benefactors of humanity were buried in the mud as part of those 10 million who fell in the last war. We do know that Banting who subsequently produced insulin was saved. But it is a fair matter of conjecture whether or not all through the ages with this beastly business of battlefield destruction we have not also destroyed the lives that bore a touch of genius, perhaps even a cure for cancer, an understanding of the control of infections and other processes to ease presently unrelievable agony.

Perhaps there is buried along the Marne the man who might have even cured insanity. Possibly there was destroyed in the battle of Tannenberg the one who could have straightened out the twisted minds of criminals.

Is the glory worth the price?

CHOKING THE NINE TAX LIVES OUT OF THE CAT

For the month of September New York City received less than half the tax receipts from the sale of cigarettes it obtained in September a year ago.

Apparently there is among the people a quiet but deep and ominous hostility to the slant-browed legislative idea of piling taxes upon the back of one article until it collapses.

In Wisconsin a man pays out eight cents in taxes on a package of cigarettes; in New York City, 9 cents. In addition the grower of tobacco, the wholesaler, the manufacturer, and then the retailer all pay taxes in many forms for the privilege of handling the merchandise.

It is the most daft-awful instance of abuse, legislative weakness and bad judgment that can be found in a tax structure that has become a crazy quilt.

But, although the smoker may be driven to the doghouse and even kicked while inside, there are limits to his patience and points beyond which he cannot longer restrain his exasperation. So he turns to his pipe or he rolls his own. And the taxing authorities lose the golden egg they were already receiving for their greedy effort to get the egg and the nest too. Of course, the state can blame the nation and the nation can blame the state.

And since the nation takes three times as much tax as the state the arguments will wax smoky and sulphurous.

But all the time the income to both state and nation is lessened while the smoker is exhibiting his manhood and genuine disgust that he has to pay so materially for all these paternalistic schemes designed largely to get a few volume, never-ending talkers back into office.

It must be a great help to employment to see manufacturers and retailers forced to let help go.

AFL BOYCOTTS RUSSIA

The American Federation of Labor has now extended its boycott to Russian goods. It had already boycotted all goods and services originating in Germany and Japan.

This is something less than a futile gesture of anger. Either it accomplishes something in respect to workers cold-shouldering goods manufactured in those countries or it accomplishes nothing. If it accomplishes anything in the former line it also injures those who participate in it.

A boycott is like a boy summoning all his energy to swing an axe against a piece of wood held by his foot. And, as in so many actual cases with this example, unless the axe is blunt, it goes through the wood—and the foot.

Boycotts are something more than jungle arguments. They are self-imposed injury.

And the AFL which in so many instances directs its course by the most enlightened standards of intelligence bogs down sadly in respect to this resolution of worse than nothingness.

STRANGE PEOPLE, THESE FINNS

Although we have known the Finns as an extremely honorable, patient and industrious people, we must record the fact that they appear to be a suspicious people too.

Why should they be apprehensive merely because a gigantic Red army is sitting upon their border? Have they forgotten that they have a treaty with Russia by which each party agrees not to attack the other? Do not they put any store upon a non-aggression pact? Can it be that they think a nation of 160 million people would attack a nation of but 4 million?

And the non-aggression treaty between Finland and Russia hardly has the ink dry upon it!

A Verse for Today

TRIO IN THE NIGHT

I hear a trio singing in the night.
The cheerful cricket and the katydid.
The buzz of harvest fly, and the delight
Of many minor voices of the night
Alloy my fears with their melodic flight

What harmony enfolds the meadows now!
The dog lies down to sleep as he was bid;
The birds are drowsing on the maple bough.
The world is carpeted with music now.
Breathing of peace we have mislaid somehow.

I hear a trio singing in the dark.
The plan of life from them forever hid.
With no security, they keep a spark
Of faith alight in the surrounding dark
Until dawn brings the sun, the mounting lark:

Mastodons, camels and an ancient type of horse once inhabited the desert areas of the American southwest.

There is one non-fatal automobile accident in the United States every 27 seconds.

Early settlers in Virginia were granted 100 acres of tobacco land free.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—Friday the Thirteenth:

Superstitions are mental hazards set up by Man to add spice to what is mostly an adventuresome life. Walking down the street day after day is a listless business, but if suddenly a ladder looms ahead, the mind is joggled alive.

Don't walk under that ladder, it's bad luck! So speaks instinct. Ah, here is sudden danger rising unexpectedly in a prosaic stroll, a thrill to the Mouse-Man. His brain, soured by superstition, says: "Evil will befall if I go under the ladder." Then reason speaks. "What can walking under a ladder possibly have to do with your future fate, Fools?" says Reason. "Are you going to grovel at the idol of superstition?"

So the man throws back his shoulders, grits his teeth, and walks bravely under the ladder; and in his heart swells the same emotion a hero has when he faces forty fens alone. Then, having passed beneath the Damoclean sword unscratched, the man goes onward through the day with his ego energized and his bosom aburst with bravery.

I had an aunt who always said: "I am not superstitious, but there is no sense in starting a journey on a Friday when there are six other days in the week." One day, however, the necessity for a quick journey arose. She got on the train. It was Friday the Thirteenth.

The next morning when her train reached its destination she was a six in the car. The porter called the conductor. They pulled back the curtains of my aunt's berth and there she lay—dead.

Friday the Thirteenth . . .

"Ma" Bertolotti has been conducting her restaurant down in Greenwich Village since the days when it had such struggling patrons as Noel Coward, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Eugene O'Neill. Now, however, she has competition from her son, Bill Bertolotti, whose nightery is just a few blocks from her own. He learned the business with "Ma," then opened his own place.

The I-for-I Dep't

The cast of "Yokel Boy" agreed to make a guest appearance the other afternoon at another theatre. The theatre had banners printed at a cost of $25 announcing the event. The banners said: "Judy Canova, Buddy Ebsen, Dixie Dunbar and the entire cast of 'Yokel Boy' will appear," etc. Buddy Ebsen heard about the sign and refused to appear unless the sign were taken down and another substituted with his name first. So they printed another sign (cost $25) with the name of Buddy Ebsen leading all the rest. So what happened? Ebsen never showed up. He will be happy, I'm sure, to know that Judy Canova did, and that she was so good that nobody missed Mr. Ebsen at all.

This business of "top billing" has come to be a very dull pain in the neck. Stars have it written into their contracts. During the months they are out of work they live on the sound of their voices telling around the lunch counters they had "top billing." The pinnacle of the top billing nonsense was reached, I believe, a year or so ago when the advertisements invited the public to come see "Mr. Paul Muni in 'Emile Zola'."

Frequently when two stars of equal ego appear in the same show, the only way in which the producer can satisfy them is to have one star's name on top on one side of the marquee, the other's on top on the other; and in the ads the names must be printed in type of exactly the same size, side by side.

"Top billing" frequently reflects itself in pocket money. A company finds itself paying as much as $10,000 a week on contract to a star who has begun to drop rapidly in public favor. There is one case in particular at the moment—a star who a few years ago was a great box office attraction but whose presence in a picture today won't draw flies. Two years remain of her $10,000-a-week contract, however, and the producers have to keep using her. She is through as a star, but she still gets that Top Billing—which fools no one but herself.

These are parlous times for the soap-box rousers. Both Columbus Circle and Union Square, centers of the unshaven intelligentsia and the ism-mongers, are not as bombastic as they used to be. With war abroad and worry in the thinking hearts here, people aren't paying much attention to the loose-lunged street orators. Soap-box ideas, by Jeeves whatever fascination it may have had when people are trying to keep sober heads on their shoulders.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Oct. 15, 1929

Lester S. Mais of Manitowoc had been engaged as director to organize a band among Neenah public school students. He was a Lawrence college graduate.

With Rogers Hornsby and Kiki Cuyler emerging from their famous batting slump to drive across all their runs, Chicago Cubs staged a comeback to score their first world's series victory in the third game by a 3 to 1 score at Shibe park, Philadelphia. Bush got the pitching duty over Earnshaw.

Approximately $8,619 in subscriptions and 634 members remained to be secured to complete the objectives of the 1929 financial and membership campaign of the Y.M.C.A. It was reported at a dinner meeting at the association building Thursday evening.

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, Oct. 16, 1914

"There is no question in my mind but that the moving pictures have a decided influence on the number of books taken from the library, tending to greatly reduce the number of good fiction books borrowed," Mrs. Agnes L. Dwight, chief librarian, said.

John J. Blaine, non-partisan candidate for governor, was to deliver an address in front of the city hall Saturday night. C. B. Ballard was to preside and introduce the speaker.

CAPITAL ONCE SEA-BED

Now 7,000 feet above sea level, Simla, the summer capital of India, stands on ground that once formed the bed of a great sea, according to findings of scientists who have just discovered the fossilized remains of marine animals in rock formations in the neighborhood. It is their conclusion that the colossal paroxysm of the earth's surface which created the world's highest mountains, the Himalayas, caused the Simla region to emerge from beneath the sea. When the earth cooled its cold crust crumbled into huge mountains and valleys as the interior of the globe shrank.

NEW LIFE FOR OLD ISLES

New life looms for a group of coral and limestone islands in the Persian Gulf. The Bahrain Islands, 20 miles from the Arabian port of El Hasa, sent forth the Phoenicians to conquer an empire, and today, after centuries of obscurity, have become a British air base and the scene of a remarkable engineering feat. The main island, Bahrain itself, is separated by a shallow sea about two miles wide from Moharek, next largest island in the group. The gap is now being bridged. Blocks of coral rock are being dredged from the sea to form a causeway between the two islands, with a swing bridge at the one deep part. The islands are noted for the world's finest pearls and a race of superior white donkeys.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—We have just come back from the front at the War department and can give an eyewitness report that

Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson is still there and so is Secretary Harry H. Woodring, in spite of strictly unofficial shelling that has continued for two years or more. It has been no secret for months that these two major figures in the War department have been at loggerheads.

Fundamentally, the trouble is this: Woodring is no dynamo. He probably will not go down in history as one of the great secretaries of war. Yet he was once governor of Kansas and has certain established qualities as an executive.

Johnson is a dynamo. He is a giant in size and his dominating personality has kept Woodring in an almost complete "blackout." By law he is the man in the department who deals with the industrial preparation for the big war the army must always be ready for. That has given him even more of an edge on Woodring.

Further, Johnson championed a whopping air force. He talked of an air expansion of four, five or six times. He got the ear of the President last year on the heels of Europe's Munich. Such a program represented not a mere purchase order but a matter of army policy where the secretary himself could have expected to have been the big gun. But the President dealt directly with Johnson.

Then began the floor of rumors. Mainly they centered on the theme that Woodring was going to be eased out into an ambassadorship.

Where did such stories originate? With Johnson, said rumor mongers. We checked into that. It doesn't hold water. Possibly some substance can be found in reports that certain New Dealers hoped to smother Woodring out and ease Attorney General Murphy into the job so New Dealer Robert Jackson could at last achieve the attorney generalship. Things like that can't be proved or disproved.

Ultimately the fat fried out of the airplane affair. Certain army generals got behind Woodring in a protest at such preparation of air power, in the belief it would starve other branches of the army. The heavyweight air program was trimmed to middleweight proportions.

That 'Permanent' Board There was more. While Woodring was inspecting the Panama canal, Johnson and Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison blossomed out with an imposing War Resources board. It was to be a permanent board. It was headed by young Edward Stettinius, chairman of Morgan Steel. It became the President's pet and Johnson's pride. Woodring again went into the "blackout."

But there was public and New Deal reaction against the administration taking so much of "big business" into its lap as was represented on the War Resources board. Its ramifications reached into the neutrality fight in Congress to the point where President Roosevelt abruptly the President announced the "permanent" board was not permanent. He accepted its report and ordered it dismissed.

There are political reasons suggesting it may ride on peaceably until Roosevelt's administration ends. Woodring's influence in Kansas and elsewhere is important. Johnson, an ex-commander of the American Legion, is likewise important from the veteran's angle. And just now President Roosevelt seems not likely to disturb the trend toward party harmony unless a situation grows out of the war such as would lead him to compel harmony in the War department.

Just a Step
Behind the News

By Dave Boone

If Stalin's brakes don't start holding pretty soon, more people are going to get hurt than were ever in Ganger away back when Hitler was the only world menace. Joseph's car is skidding all over Europe, scaring everybody in sight.

The cry, "Stop Hitler!" don't mean a thing now. It's Stalin who has the ball. Adolf is away back under his own goal post, flat on his face, trying to remember what signal he called.

Chamberlain says the allies can't accept Hitler's peace offer, but that don't make much difference at the moment. Hitler is too groggy from the Russian affair to remember the war with England.

That famous line, "All rights protected, including the Scandinavian," has been shot to pieces by the bear that walks like a gorilla.

I see the passengers on the storm-tossed Iroquois got in without being torpedoed. But they were in such bad shape that a lot of 'em wanted official confirmation of their escape.

date came from the working men and women of the state, both from union and non-union groups. They showed clearly by the last election that they, the working people, were tired and disgusted with the ill-advised, un-American and dictatorial policies of the paid organizer and the dominating labor bosses.

Realizing the significance of the Nov. 3 election, and true to its principles, the Republican party immediately proceeded to modify and correct the then inequitable labor laws. We passed legislation placing the destinies of the laborer into his own hands rather than in the hands of the self-perpetuating, Socialist-dominated labor leader group.

We restored to the working man the rights to choose his representatives by secret ballot. We said "you may join any organization you desire to join, but you shall not be compelled to join any organization against your will." We invalidated picketing by so-called "stranger-pickets," that is, persons not employed or connected with the place of employment being picketed, and we likewise put into the law that there must be a labor dispute between the employer and a majority of his employees before picketing is legal.

It is the legal protection of these, God-given rights that has caused the "labor-mongers" to howl in dismay. They say they will not obey the law; that it is unconstitutional and that the Republican legislature is opposed to labor. They have shown their true colors. They have admitted that the dues-paying laboring man in many instances would not follow their radical leadership unless compelled to do so. The Republicans have shown that they are the true friend of the laboring man by protecting him from the 1939 model Simon Legree.

Prior administrations had placed in the laws of Wisconsin what is known as the "milk control law." This law gave to the department of agriculture and markets the authority to set the price of fluid or bottled milk. Only about 5 per cent of all of the milk produced in the state goes into the fluid milk market, whereas the other 95 per cent goes into the surplus market. The large distributors of fluid milk were anxious to have a high price on their product to the consumer. This meant that the low income group, which group usually has the largest families, were unable to buy as much bottled milk and the surplus was thrown into the regular market, lowering the price to

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HEALTH

Early in the century when amnesia was "aphasia" and certain criminals were invariably "morons" there was widely prevalent a concept of like character to the effect that in order to be intelligible to the general public one must use only such words of allusions as a twelve-year-old child understands. In the past twenty-five years I have received letters from more than five million persons, chiefly residents of North America, but not a few from other continents, bearing on the question of personal health. Not all have asked for advice or information; many have offered it and some have given it—in one mood or another.

At first analysis it might seem extraordinary how small a proportion of these letters come from persons with arrested mental development. Oh, of course an adult with the intelligence of a ten year old child may write or type a short letter without betraying deficiency, but as a rule feeble-mindedness is manifest. On second thought a more rational explanation would be the fact that the child-minded portion of the population doesn't care so much for a column written for readers of normal intelligence. Irrespective of the evident high I. Q. of these correspondents—many of them are members of the various learned professions—it seems to me that the questions they ask and the ideas they have and the assertions they make concerning hygiene, health and the prevention of disease only go to show that the popular health education program up to the present has failed miserably in competition with effective obfuscation of the public by the nostrum and quackery interests. The determination of these interests to keep the majority of people ignorant or misinformed concerning hygiene, health and prevention of disease is backed by millions of dollars appropriated annually from their profits for this purpose. For no one comprehends more clearly than the quack or the nostrum monger that a credulous, gullible public—and of course a nice discrimination in enforcement of such laws as may impede business—constitutes the most favorable market condition for Humbug & Humbug Inc.

Early in the century physicians, health authorities and various organizations for race betterment agitated the then novel idea of periodic health tests or physical examinations for well folk, as a practical prophylaxis against premature "breakdown" from cardiovascular degeneration, which generally reaches an advanced stage before the victim even seeks proper medical examination or advice. A few of the more intelligent class adopted this practice, but the wisecracks still prefer to try whatever the nostrum and quackery interests are promoting this season for the familiar complaints of "tired feeling," "overwork," "nervous exhaustion" in the earlier stages of CVD.

One encouraging sign, at any rate, is that a far greater portion of the population today is health-conscious than was the case twenty-five years ago.

Kaukauna Group To Stage Comedy At Parish Hall

Senior CYO Players Will Present 'Adam's Apple' Sunday Night

New London—"Adam's Apple," a 3-act farce-comedy, will be presented at the Most Precious Blood parish hall by Holy Cross Senior group of the Kaukauna CYO at 8:15 Sunday evening.

In the cast are Adam Van Alstyne, stock broker and man about town as played by Orrin Romanesco; Eve Van Alstyne, his wife, played by Geraldine Brewster; Cecily Tennant, his sister-in-law, played by Armella Boucher; Billy Aldrich, engaged to Cecily, taken by Francis Wagner; Uncle John, Charles Weber; Riggs, John Giegler; Maggie, the cook, Jean Kramer; Casper, Boniface Pendergast; Casper's assistant, Ray Heindel; footman, Bob Eiting; and newsboy, Herbert Weber.

The play presents an entertaining story in which the Van Alstyne family plays the stock markets. Adam is sure they will all lose heavily when he hears that Lennox, a millionaire, disappears just at a time when he should be fighting a stock issue. A would-be "Uncle John" comes to visit at this time which complicates matters because there was no such uncle. Uncle John keeps things moving until Adam introduces Riggs, an escaped but harmless lunatic, as his uncle just to get rid of John. At this point Maggie spoils the fake setup of characters and the play goes on to a surprisingly enjoyable finish.

James W. Long directs the play and Herman Maes is the promotion manager. Those on the staff are: Publicity, Lucile Faust; posters, Gene Heindel; programs, Lee Scherer; and tickets and box-office, Lois Wieseler. Orville Yingling and Herman Maes compose the executive committee.

The production workers are as follows: Stage hands, Robert Eiting, manager, Ray Heindel, Milton Vandebey, and John Grubbe; prompters, Marie Reuter and Anne Ling; costumes, Mary Renn; property managers, Beverly Brown, Jeanette Hennes, and Vione Sieber; lighting, Herbert Niesen; and make up by the Green Room Artists of Kaukauna High school. Last year the Holy Cross CYO gave the successful performance of "Intruding on Horace" at New London. All the actors are veterans, having experience in former CYO or high school senior class plays.

Mothers Must Help Children To Stand on Their Own Feet

BY ANGELO PATRI
Children who are tied by the heartstrings to home and mother past the time when the tie is essential, suffer a great hardship. All children develop unevenly, gaining power first in one direction and then another, gradually becoming balanced enough to live in some degree of harmony with the rest of the world. The child who has not been weaned from his mother, cannot develop in many essential ways and his success in life is threatened accordingly.

"It is in the nature of some children to declare their independence early. 'Let ME do it,' they say even when they are unable to hold the shoe laces properly much less to tie them. Such children grow up fast and soon assume a great deal of responsibility for themselves. They are happier that way.

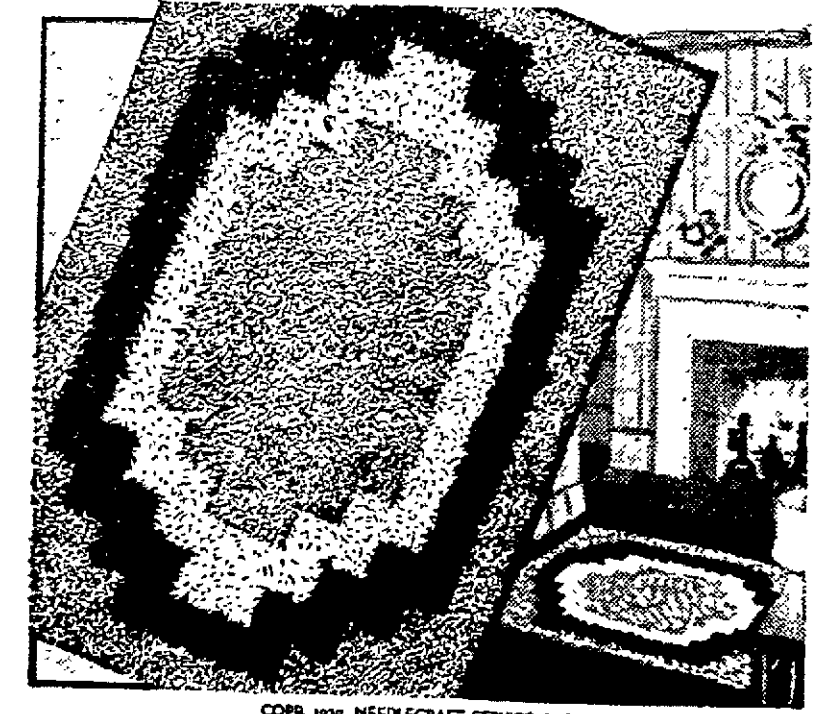

But some children stick fast in babyhood. If they lose sight of their mothers for a time they grow uneasy, then restless, then despondent. They lose their appetites for fun or food and can think of only one thing, getting back to mother. That costs them many useful experiences. It delays initiative. It retards growth and development. Unless they can overcome this feeling and get free they must suffer defeat and failure.

Mothers of such children have to work delicately, but firmly, to loose the clutching hands and the clinging minds. This is not done by scolding and threatening and force. These means are likely to fasten the difficulty. The child must be freed in a series of pleasant experiences so that he learns that he can be both safe and happy apart from his mother.

It is good to begin with a brief experience. Start when the child begins to play about the floor. Select a comfortable place, in sight of mother, but separated from her by some distance. Give the child something to amuse himself with and leave him to his own resources. He should play by himself, without reference to anybody else for at least fifteen minutes. Gradually the time is lengthened, the distance increased until the child is able to take care of his own amusement for a couple of hours in another part of the house or garden. He is usually able and glad to do this by the time he is four years old if he is trained that way.

This mental training is the essential weaning of the child's mind from that of his mother's. Some mothers forget about it altogether. They wean the child from the breast or the bottle and give no thought of the mental dependency that is fastening itself upon the little one.

Player Must Be Careful in Trying Bluff

BY ELY CULBERTSON
It is logical—commendable even—to flimflam the enemy whenever possible, but a player must be careful not to stub his own toe in the process. The declarer in today's hand staved off one threat, only to fall victim to another.

The bidding:
East 3 diamonds South Double West Pass North 4 clubs
Pass 4 hearts Double Pass

Obviously, East's three diamond bid was not the orthodox Culbertson minor suit three bid which requires a solid suit. East's idea was only to preempt.

North was tempted to leave in the double for penalties, but felt that there was a reasonable chance that his own side might make game, hence his four club bid. South's four heart bid was a natural consequence, as was West's penalty double. West probably felt that he was going to make a killing, but in this he was wrong.

The diamond ten was opened, dummy played low. East won with the ace, and declarer, who felt sure that East must have started with seven diamonds and that West had held a singleton, false-carded by dropping the diamond jack, hoping thereby to discourage a diamond return. East "fell for" the false card and shifted to the four of spades. Declarer put in the ten, and West won with the jack. West now was somewhat up against it for a good return. As it happened, he could have led a heart or a club, but neither of these seemed attractive to him, and in the hope that his partner had a spade honor, he returned the spade six. Dummy held this trick with the seven spot, and now the heart jack was led. When East showed out, declarer properly ducked, not wishing to waste two honors on one trick. West accepted his queen and returned a trump, feeling that this was his safest exit. Dummy's ten held, the heart nine was cashed, and then declarer entered his own hand with a spade to the ace, to lay down the ace and king of hearts. Before the last trump was played, this was the situation:

West, of course, followed suit on the heart ace. Dummy discarded a club and East, who realized by now that declarer still had two diamonds had to hold on to his queen and seven of diamonds, therefore had to reduce to two clubs. Declarer now had a grand opportunity, but muffed it. He led a club to the king, cashed the ace, discarding the spade queen, and then hopefully led the diamond nine. East, however, was not silly enough to cover, and declarer was "stuck." To overtake the nine with the king was only to concede the eight spot to East's queen, whereas letting the nine win was to leave the play in dummy and concede the last club to West.

Victory had been well within declarer's grasp. After the lead of the last heart had made East discard the club suit, cashing the diamond king would have settled West's hand. West would have had to hold the spade king to overplay the queen, hence he also would have had to reduce to two clubs and dummy's suit would have been good as gold.

Strangely enough, another play at the very first trick also would have worked if the defense followed the same lines. That play was merely to throw the diamond nine on the opening lead, retaining the four spot in dummy. Then, assuming everything went as it did, declarer would have been able to finesse against the diamond queen, up to his own king-eight.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

There is an old saying to the effect that it is the squeaky wheel which gets the grease. Modern advertising has also demonstrated that the business houses which attract the public's attention will also get the volume of business, other things being equal. Read about Dr. Johnson's error in 1759 regarding advertising.

CASE O-171: Mrs. Crane went to the telephone a few minutes ago to call a plumber. Since we have had no occasion for years to consult such an expert, I wondered how she happened to select this particular man.

I had noticed her looking through the pages of the classified telephone directory just prior to placing her call.

"How did you happen to call that particular plumber?" I asked.

"Well, I'll tell you how I always make my choice in such circumstances," she replied.

"I pick out the man or firm which has the largest ad. Look here," and she showed me the page of the phone book.

"Here are hundreds of plumbers," she continued. "Some of them are listed in boldface type. But others go further than that, and run a little add. This one I just called, is located in our part of Chicago and has a 2-inch ad."

Rated By Size Of Ad
"But why do you think the man with the larger advertisement is the better plumber?" I inquired.

"Oh, I figure that he must be progressive and up-to-date, or he'd not appreciate the value of modern advertising."

"Besides, he must be making money in order to place a larger ad than the others. And if he is making money, then I suppose he is doing good work. Simple, isn't it?"

Yes, it sounds like simple arithmetic, all right, and is a good auto-apply it. As the skin ages, it wrinkles—that makes applying powder and rouge a more difficult art!

NAME'S IN FULL
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it ever correct to use initials on engraved wedding invitations or announcements?

Answer: Correctly, the name should be used in full. However, if it should be a name like Harrison Montmorency Thitherington, then it would be permissible to use the initial of one of the names. For example, H. Montmorency Thitherington, but never H. M. Thitherington. That is too commercial.

Cutting the Wedding Cake
Dear Mrs. Post: There is just one detail of my marriage reception which I am not sure about. Will you tell me at what time during the reception I should cut the wedding cake?

Answer: After you and the bridegroom have received every one's good wishes, you both go into the dining-room and you cut the first piece of cake, which you share with him. After this the other guests cut pieces for themselves.

Secret of Mrs. Three-In-One
Dear Mrs. Post: I have been married about six weeks but have put off asking mother-in-law to dinner because I cannot cook very well yet, and besides that, she is used to perfect service. We have no maid, and since you have often written not to try to "put on" or do things any better when you have company, I wish you would tell me how you think would be the best way to serve this meal.

Answer: I never meant not to try to have everything especially nice for company, but merely that you should not pretend to be very grand and then perhaps bungle things through not knowing how to carry out your plans. To do everything as well as you can is the first and only rule. Choose a menu that you know best how to prepare, and can most easily serve. Good food is that which is good of its kind. Good food is delicious. A burned outside and raw inside roast is bad. Putting everything for each course on the table and letting your husband serve is the best because it is the simplest way to manage without jumping up every minute. Remember that the effect of doing things smoothly, neatly and with least apparent effort is the sole objective of good service.

A Widow's Ring
Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widow and have just received an engagement ring from the man I am soon to marry. Should I continue wearing my wedding ring since I now have this new engagement ring? And another thing, after I am married, what do I do with my old wedding ring?

Answer: In fairness to your husband-to-be, you should of course take off your first husband's ring and put it away. Perhaps some day you can have it gold made into something suitable. If, for example, you have a son, it might be remade into a wedding ring for his bride.

THE HOME GARDENER
by EDWIN H. PERKINS

From now on the gardener will find his time largely taken up by numbers of small jobs, few of which are tiring and all of them essential to a good gardening program. A clean garden is a healthy garden. The only way to insure having a good, pest-free garden next year is to cut down and burn the tops of all plants which have finished flowering. You should also include the tops of gladioli and dahlias which were cut before the tubers were dug. These two plants are persistent harborers of European corn borers but the pest can be eradicated through the more burning of the tops. Then, too, the residue from the burnings is an ideal source of potash which will greatly improve the fertility of the garden.

As an aid to next year's early efforts, it is recommended that a quantity of leaf mold be collected and held in readiness until it is needed next spring. Before the winter winds start to blow it is quite easy to find supplies of this mold either in your own garden or in some neighboring woodland. Good garden soil and sand will likewise be needed for starting seeds. It is suggested that a box of each of these be collected at the same time.

As soon as the delicate types of chrysanthemum have finished their flowering it is wise to lift the roots and store them in a cold frame where they are almost certain to survive.

ZIPPERED FLOWERS
Paris—(P)—Flowers that bloom in the fall conceal zipper closings. A geranium fronting the neck of a black dress splits in the middle when the zipper petal is pulled. A bunch of violets at the waist of an afternoon frock opens up in the same way. This is Molyneux's way of adding a decorative touch to a practical feature, and the flowers combine silk embroidery with colored paillettes.

Man Gives Advice to Girls On How to Please Boy Friends

BY DOROTHY DIX
An old man of the world gives this advice to girls about how to please the boys. He says: "Be feminine. When a girl throws away her femininity she has discarded her trump card. The thing that attracts men to women is the difference that sex makes in them and this goes for looks and clothes and manners and morals. Men want women to be pretty and wear frilly clothes, be gentle and sweet and to believe in God and to say their prayers. Mighty few men fall in love with a girl who looks like a tramp and who talks like a hooligan."

"Don't try to be sophisticated. Don't pretend that you have been everywhere and seen everything and done everything. Don't tell smutty stories and laugh at obscene ones. Don't boast of how much liquor you can drink. Don't sneer at your parents. There is nothing more repulsive to a man, no matter how bad he is himself, than a hard-boiled young girl."

"Innocence and purity to a girl are like dew on a rosebud. Charm to a conjure with you can. Don't be ashamed when men call you old-fashioned. They are paying you the highest compliment in their power and hoping that some day they will be lucky enough to find a girl like you when they come to marry."

"Don't try to dress like a man. Nature didn't build you that way. Stick to skirts. They are like the mantle of charity and cover a multitude of sins in your architecture. Anyway, men are susceptible to drapery. They have always been skirt-chasers, but you never heard of one who was a britches-chaser. Besides, we men unconsciously resent women swiping our clothes. You have taken away our jobs. Leave us our pants."

"Learn how to dress. Study your style and your lines so that you can make a man of yourself, instead of emphasizing your defect you have. No woman need be as homely as Nature made her if she will buy the things that flatter her, instead of the freaks that are the fashion and that make her look like a figure of fun. No man ever distinguishes between a woman and her clothes, and many a girl has the reputation of being a beauty because she has a swishy pink chiffon dress."

"Above all, learn how to put on your make-up artistically instead of daubing it on like paint on a barn. And go lightly on the lipstick. It takes a man with a strong stomach to want to kiss a girl whose mouth looks like a cut of raw butcher's meat."

"Adapt your conversation to your company. Some men want you to lend them your ears. Others want you to give them your tongue. If the current boy friend is one who likes to monologue about himself and tell about what he said to the boss and what the boss said to him, and how many miles he makes on a gallon of gas in his car, your cue is to register absorbed interest and exclaim at intervals 'How wonderful!' But if the lad is of the shy and silent sort who chokes on his adams apple when he tries to speak, you must babble on like the brook that went on and on forever if you ever expect to see him again. But no matter whether your escort is a spellbinder or one of the great strong silent men of the movie hero breed, never tell one man about how many other men you could have married, or compare the treat or the present one man is giving you with what another man did for you. It scares a man off to think that you may be dangling his scalp some day before other men's eyes."

"In your manner to men be cordial but not effusive. The ideal attitude of a girl toward a boy should be that of being able to take him or leave him. Unless she is a hopelessly dumb Dora she can let a man know that she likes him; that she finds him an interesting and agreeable companion; that she enjoys dancing with him. And when he takes her out she can make him feel that she is having the time of her life. But it is fatal for her to rush over a man and act grateful when he asks her to step out with him. That is a giveaway that lets him know that she has no other beaux."

"Men are like sheep where women are concerned. They follow the leader and want to date the girl that all the other men are dating."

"Don't dress too well. Don't look too expensive. Many a girl sits at home of an evening with Mother because she is always so dolled up that a poor lad thinks that her clothes rate a swanky night club."

Second Wife Has Trouble About First One
Dear Dorothy Dix—I married a widower and have done my best to make him a good wife, but he makes me utterly miserable by continually comparing me with his former wife. This would be hard enough to stand if he only did it at home, but when we are out among people he humiliates me so much by making her the subject of his conversation that it has got so I prefer to stay at home. What shall I do? Shall I tell him how I resent what he does, or carry on as I have been doing?

Answer: You should imitate another second wife of whom I knew, whose husband also made the "dear departed" his theme song. According to him the deceased lady had been a paragon without a single fault or defect. He desecrated daily and hourly about what a wonderful cook she was; how she ran a house on a shoestring; how she never had a new dress; how she never got angry or tired or nervous; how she waited on him hand and foot and never demanded anything of him, and so on and on.

The second wife listened to these encomiums as long as she could and finally at one of the recitals she burst into tears. "What are you crying about now?" asked the husband. "Oh," replied Mrs. No. 2, "I am weeping for your first wife. Nobody in the world could regret her death so much as I do, because if she had lived she would have saved me all that I am suffering."

And that, according to the story, shut up the husband.

Any man who continually throws his first wife in his second wife's teeth and tells No. 2 how superior No. 1 was in all her ways has either so little sense that he should be locked up in an asylum for the incurable feckless, or else he is so jealous as she is of the poor lady out at the cemetery. For she had all the freshness, the youth and romance of their mutual husband, and all that wife No. 2 gets is his warmed-over affection. And, furthermore, with a live woman who could compete, but before the memories of a dead one she is helpless.

No second wife wants her husband to forget his first wife, but she feels that in common humanity to her he might keep silent about her.

After A Man's Heart

YESTERDAY: Buff begins to lavish the protectiveness she once reserved for her parents on the indifferent invalid Tim Corlies. His friend and partner, George Weekes, is summoned to cheer Tim up.

George Weekes

Two weeks went by; three; and the only real change at the ranch was Tim's promotion to crutches which allowed him to come downstairs once a day. This usually happened about four o'clock, and he stayed down until his early bedtime.

George Weekes came often to visit his partner.

"You ought to charge me board," he told Buff. "Or maybe I earn my vittles by taking old Tim off your hands for a while. He's not exactly thrilling company these days." There was a hint of interrogation in his voice, question in the way he looked at her, but she chose to ignore everything but his actual words.

"Oh, he's coming along nicely now. Dr. Westland is quite pleased with him."

"That's a darned nice girl," George informed Tim upstairs a few minutes later. "Pretty, too. Or had you noticed?"

"I'm afraid I hadn't." The other man was apologetic but still vague. "She's a kind little person."

He passed his hand over his forehead. "Now you speak of it, it occurs to me she's given me a lot of

WATA Exhibit on Health Is Being Shown at College

Comprehensive Tuberculosis Displays Show Stages of Disease

How tuberculosis can be discovered early and how young people can be protected against this "dread disease" is demonstrated in a comprehensive exhibit of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association in the little gymnasium on the Lawrence college campus.

Of large rectangular shape, the exhibit is constructed on the box-type design. It is 21 feet long and 7 feet wide. The panels are illuminated by indirect lighting. It includes pathological specimens of human lungs, showing a healthy lung; a lung with cavities, demonstrating advanced tuberculosis; and a lung with calcification, showing how the progress of the disease can be halted with proper treatment.

Enlarged pictures depict the steps in the diagnosis of the disease, as used in the state university case-finding program. These include the tuberculin skin test, chest x-ray and laboratory tests.

The W. A. T. A. reports that national figures show that eight out of every ten patients entering a tuberculosis sanatorium do not do so until they are in an advanced stage of the disease, when cure is slower, more expensive and less certain.

How tuberculosis infection and death from the disease go hand in hand is illustrated on a series of maps which show that students coming from northern Wisconsin to the university have a higher percentage of infection because in that northern section, the tuberculosis death rate is higher than state average.

Literature is distributed to the students attending the exhibit. The W. A. T. A. carries on a year-round, state-wide program of education, and case-finding financed with funds raised from the annual sale of penny Christmas seals.

Dewey Still Leading, but Vandenberg and Taft Gain as G.O.P. Choice for President

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—With the 1940 nominations due to be made in less than eight months, a question of more than ordinary political interest is how the war affected Republican party fortunes and the popularity of leading Republican contenders for the presidency.

One popular figure in the party, Senator Vandenberg, is fighting revision of the Neutrality Act. Another, Senator Taft, advocates revision. Two former G.O.P. standard bearers, Herbert Hoover and Alfred M. Landon have participated actively in the national debate over neutrality. What is the current popularity of these and other leaders among Republican voters? If the nomination were today what Republican would be the popular favorite of the party?

A fact-finding survey just completed among Republican voters shows that the most popular candidate is still Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who has thus far kept aloof from the controversy over neutrality legislation. But Dewey's popularity has declined since the outbreak of war, whereas Senator Vandenberg's popularity has increased slightly in the same period and Senator Taft has held his own.

A cross-section of Republican voters in all states, i.e., those who cast their ballots for Alfred M. Landon in 1936, was asked this question by the interviewing organization of the American Institute of Public Opinion:

"Whom would you like to see elected president in 1940?"

The results today, as compared to similar Institute surveys in recent months, follow:

TODAY
Dewey	39%
Vandenberg	27
Taft	17
Hoover	5
Landon	4
Borah	3
Lindbergh	1
Bricker	1
Others	3

LAST AUGUST
Dewey	45%
Vandenberg	25
Taft	14
Hoover	6
Landon	3
Borah	2
Bricker	2
Others	3

LAST JULY
Dewey	47%
Vandenberg	19
Taft	13
Hoover	6
Landon	4
Borah	4
LaGuardia	2
Bricker	1
Others	5

Several interesting trends are revealed in these surveys. Dewey's popularity with the rank and file of Republicans showed a slight drop before war broke out in Europe, but the decline was hastened after war took the center of the national stage. Senator Vandenberg's popularity, however, has grown steadily since last July, rising from 17 per cent in that month to 27 per cent today. Senator Taft has likewise gained a little ground since the outbreak of war.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's name appears among the top seven for the first time in Institute surveys. This may be accounted for by the address he made several weeks ago in which he advocated strict American aloofness from the European conflict.

The divisions of sentiment revealed in today's survey are by no means rigid. Previous surveys demonstrate that the public's attitude toward candidates is subject to swift changes, especially at the neutrality debate continues. In opposing revision of the arms embargo, the Senator is taking a position which the minority of Republicans, not the majority, favor at this time. A recent Institute survey found that 59 per cent of Republican voters approve lifting the arms embargo, while 41 per cent oppose such a move.

In addition to the leading choices in today's survey, the following Republicans were prominently mentioned by G.O.P. voters: Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Fiorello LaGuardia, Henry Ford, Frank Knox, Senator H. Styles Bridges, Governor Arthur James of Pennsylvania, Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Senator Gerald P. Nye, Congressman Bruce Barton, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Glenn Frank, Representative Hamilton Fish, Publisher Frank Gannett, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

(Copyright, 1939)

The Institute has completed a survey among Republican voters to determine whether the outbreak of war has affected the popularity of prominent G.O.P. candidates. It found that Thomas E. Dewey (upper left), Senator Arthur Vandenberg (upper right) and Senator Robert A. Taft (lower right) are leading in popularity, but that Dewey's popularity has declined sharply since the war began.

Next Monday

How has the outbreak of war affected the political prospects of the Republican party? How many voters now want to see the G.O.P. win in 1940? How many think it will win?

These vital questions will be answered in an American Institute of Public Opinion survey which will be reported in the Appleton Post-Crescent Monday.

This distance from convention time in the next two months sentiment may shift as rapidly as it has in the last two months. Moreover, a large group of Republican voters—44 per cent—have not yet made up their minds what candidate they favor.

Of special interest in the next month will be the trend of Senator Vandenberg's popularity as the neutrality debate continues. In opposing revision of the arms embargo, the Senator is taking a position which the minority of Republicans, not the majority, favor at this time. A recent Institute survey found that 59 per cent of Republican voters approve lifting the arms embargo, while 41 per cent oppose such a move.

In addition to the leading choices in today's survey, the following Republicans were prominently mentioned by G.O.P. voters: Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Fiorello LaGuardia, Henry Ford, Frank Knox, Senator H. Styles Bridges, Governor Arthur James of Pennsylvania, Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Senator Gerald P. Nye, Congressman Bruce Barton, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Glenn Frank, Representative Hamilton Fish, Publisher Frank Gannett, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

New Barometer of Success, Based on Service, Is Seen As Key to Saving Democracy

If democracy is to survive there must be constant education against propaganda and regimentation, an adult population adequately informed, a new barometer of success which emphasizes service to others rather than material reward for oneself and recognition of a new world economy in which the free flow of trade has been curbed by self-sufficient nations. Those were the suggestions made by Dean F. O. Holt of the University of Wisconsin extension division in an address before the Appleton Federated Woman's club Thursday afternoon at the club house.

CLUB SPEAKER

Speaking on the subject "Can America Survive?" Dean Holt asserted his faith in the principles of democracy, the American way of life. The United States is the only one of six great countries of the world in which young people today go to school instead of to war, he declared, and the American standard of living, with its electric lights, modern plumbing and radio in almost every home, he went on, is the highest in the world.

"Let young people study any 'ism' of the day, under men and women who have no axe to grind and who won't resort to the low level of propaganda," Dean Holt said. "Democracy is so superior to any other form that students who cooperate in other ways of government cannot help but see its worth."

Must Be Informed
What America needs is thinkers, the speaker continued. Real education at the adult level, and when there is an adult population adequately informed and able to withstand the barrage of propaganda and wave of hysteria which it faces today, democracy is safe.

"In answer to the critics who have condemned American 'rugged individualism' as the cause of the depression and other economic ills, Dean Holt declared it was not the rugged individualism but the ruthless selfishness into which it degenerated that caused the trouble.

Several generations of boys and girls were reared, he said, with the idea that the great barometer of success was material aggrandizement. They should be taught to go into the economic, political and social scheme with a different interpretation of success.

"Young people should be more concerned about what they give and what they are than what they get. If democracy is to survive," he declared.

The three great political philosophies, communism, on the left, fascism and fascism at the right and democracy in between, all claim as their objectives economic and social security. But communism and fascism make the state, not the individual, all important, the speaker continued, and to create a united following use the technique of propaganda and regimentation based on fear.

Constant Education
"Democracy, on the other hand, believes in constant education against propaganda and regimentation and holds that progress comes only with the development and exchange of ideas," he pointed out.

He used as illustration the story of a young member of the Soviet union who asked an American newspaper correspondent if Americans were really allowed to criticize those in power, in writing as well as by mere words. When the American told him that was true, the Russian answered,

"Isn't that queer, when there's only one truth?"

In the matter of religion, nazism and communism also differ from democracy, Dean Holt continued. Both nazism and communism attack religion because dictators can brook no competition and can recognize no superior. Democracy, on the other hand, wants the individual to take on the attributes of the divine, he said, and recognizes no power superior to the supreme spiritual being.

The fact that there are from 10 to 12 million unemployed in the United States the speaker blamed not on democracy, but on the loss of foreign trade.

"Every nation has tried to become self-sufficient," he explained, "interrupting the free flow of trade which was the life of world economy. If democracy is to survive we have to recognize the different economies."

Turning to the present European situation, the speaker said the most

Knights are Told to Study Their Religion

BECAUSE they are ignorant of their own faith, Catholic men and women are responsible for the strife the Catholic church is encountering today, the Rev. Henry Schmidt, pastor of St. Philomena church at Birnamwood, charged in an address before Knights of Columbus and their ladies and guests at a Landing day dinner-dance last night at Conway hotel. Father Schmidt urged his listeners to read and study their religion so that they may be able to combat its enemies.

He spoke of the influence which Christopher Columbus had on the members of Knights of Columbus, and discussed the moral aspects of the deeds of Columbus. About 150 persons attended the banquet. The program was broadcast over the local radio station from 8 to 9:30.

Seated at the speaker's table were Dr. Robert T. McCarthy who acted as toastmaster, Father Schmidt, the Rev. Cyprian Abler, O.M. Cap, the Rev. Father Brian, O.M. Cap, the Rev. Lambert Scanlan and the Rev. Edward Haessly.

Dancing and cards followed the dinner. Prizes at schafskopf went to Father Haessly and Joseph Weber at auction bridge to Mrs. David La Violette and M. H. Kettenhofen and at contract to Arthur J. Kessler, Neenah.

Mrs. James Brown eighth district president, announced that the national president, Mrs. Ida Cohan Roxbury Mass., will be at Green Bay Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

Stephen A. Haboush, left, and Madame Haboush are shown here wearing the Galilean costumes in which they will appear Sunday morning and Tuesday evening at First English Lutheran church. Mr. Haboush, a North American citizen who was born and raised in Galilee, recently returned to his birthplace and made colored motion pictures of scenes and people of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Galilee which he will show in Appleton assisted by his wife.

Shepherd to Speak Twice at English Lutheran Church

Two appearances at First English Lutheran church will be made by Stephen A. Haboush, shepherd from Galilee, who will speak at the 10:30 service Sunday morning and present a Bible land musical travelog at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the church.

For his Sunday morning topic Mr. Haboush will give an exposition of the Twenty-third psalm based on his experiences as a shepherd youth in Galilee. He will appear in native Galilean costume Tuesday evening he will give a Bible land musical travelog entitled "On Sacred Soil" showing scenes of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Galilee in natural color, assisted by Madame Haboush and two young men.

When Mr. Haboush, a North American citizen, made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land recently, it was made under different circumstances from the usual tour of Galilee and Palestine, for this man was going home to the land of his birth. In his boyhood he had tended his father's flocks of sheep on the hills around the Sea of Galilee.

In his pilgrimage back to the land of his birth he saw Galilee and Palestine with native eyes as well as the eyes of a North American citizen. He brings to his audience the story of the Holy Land, augmented by special motion pictures in natural color. Mr. Haboush is a author as well as a lecturer and traveler having written "My Shepherd Life in Galilee."

Gladys Swarthout's Apartment Is One of New York's Finest

G LADYS SWARTHOUT'S apartment is one of the most talked about in New York city. The operatic star, who will open the Community Artist Series at Memorial chapel Monday night, Oct. 30, lives with her husband, Frank Chapman, on the 12th floor of a luxurious apartment house overlooking the East river. Together they planned and furnished it entirely, picking out each piece of furniture, every rug, drape, picture, and bric-a-brac.

The drawing room is a mixture of Louis XV and Louis XVI. There are numerous art objects, each with a fascinating history, brought from Europe.

The classic overmantel, one of the room's dominant features, was designed by Chapman himself, to provide a setting for their collection of 18th century Italian miniatures.

The cue for the color scheme came from the old Aubusson rug, bud-green, pussy-willow gray, muted rose, and subtle blue. The cream-colored walls are compounded of no less than 10 colors.

A pale gold brocade Louis XV love seat, an arm chair of rose velvet, a white linen covered sofa, two small Louis XV chairs with seats of delicate green, a Director desk and several small tables and cabinets constitute the room's furniture.

In direct contrast, is an adjacent workroom. It contains a huge desk, book shelves filled with hundreds of volumes, files filled with what appear to be huge phonograph records. They are, however, transcripts of Miss Swarthout's broadcasts.

About the whole apartment is a faint fragrance of lilacs. It is Miss Swarthout's pet scent. She sprays it in her linen closets, bureau drawers, shoe bags, and cushions. She even added it to the shellac used on her living room furniture.

Apostolate Is Given Funds by Two Parishes

A CHECK for $1,000 from St. Joseph's parish and one for $600 from St. Mary parish have been received by Appleton Apostolate, according to a report by the secretary, Miss Cecile Wilz, at the meeting of the Apostolate board of directors last night at Catholic home. The Rev. Andrew C. Mathieu, F. Wayne, Ind., a student at the Catholic University at Washington, D.C., was a guest at the meeting last night as were several other priests. He urged the members not to lose interest in the Apostolate saying that "it is the work of Almighty God and if you do all you possibly can materially and above all spiritually then certainly God is going to bless you." He compared the amount of work done in such town Apostolate groups with that of eastern organizations. Father Mathieu has been assigned by the dean of social work at the Catholic University to field work in the Green Bay diocese as part of his studies in social work.

The Rev. Henry C. Head, diocesan director of the Apostolate, the Rev. E. F. Geimer, Oshkosh, assistant father head, and the Rev. Cyrrian Abler, O.M. Cap., pastor of St. Joseph's church, gave short talks on Apostolate work.

Public Sometimes Has Real Interest in Union Courts

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Labor unions long have been suspicious of the public courts, and in handling their internal disputes and scraps between unions over questions of jurisdiction and dues they prefer to roll their own decisions. The stated purpose of this policy is legitimate. It is intended to guard against public airing of routine family jams and reduce the risks of litigation initiated by spies for strictly disruptive purposes.

Nevertheless, cases to arise in which the public also has an interest, such as the recent row between the actors' union and the stagehands and the old, bitter fight between the brewery workers and the teamsters for jurisdiction over the men who drive the beer trucks. Some other brewery teamsters are involved, but it will picture the case and truth will not be sacrificed if we think of the disputed jobs as beer truck jobs.

The theatrical fight began in a very intimate family spat in one branch of the actors' union. There was a question whether some union money had been misapplied. There was no question of theft, but the union worked itself into a great lather, anyway, and while the actors were fighting among themselves the stagehands moved in and tried to take them over. At this, some of the actors made accusations against officials or representatives of the stagehands which involved offenses that were not the private business of any private organization. They were public business, and the actors, as citizens, had a duty to present to the public courts any evidence in their possession. But then, abruptly, the whole affair was settled within the union circle, and the actors quietly forgot their high-minded grievances against the individuals whom they had recently been denouncing.

The settlement, however, completely ignored the merits of the original fuss about the money. That never was settled. It also ignored the truth or error of the allegations against the representatives of the stagehands.

Threat to Industry Is Concern of Public
The public interest was further involved in the threat to close up the entire amusement industry, movies and all. This is a big industry. Many investors stood to lose heavily because of a fight in which they had no part, and the problem of relief for those who would have been thrown out of work would have been a public responsibility.

Yet, but for an opportune and evasive settlement, the actors and the hands could have dragged on a complete strike against each other for months of a year, and any appeal to the public courts would have been regarded as disloyalty or hostility to unionism. This even though the union could duck the issue.

The teamsters have declared embargoes closing whole states to certain kinds of beer, and to beer manufactured in certain areas, because the brewery workers have refused to give up their teamsters. The teamsters have interfered with interstate commerce in a legitimate commodity, and the embargoed brewers, observing every letter of the many laws governing his industry, is up against a super government whose own courts either refuse to make decisions or can't make their decisions stick. The public government, afraid to offend any powerful union, does nothing for him, although the brewer, as a citizen and taxpayer, plainly deserves protection.

Unions Should Assume Responsibility, Enforcement
If unions claim the right to maintain their private courts to decide cases of discipline and jurisdiction they also assume a responsibility to face issues and enforce their decisions. However, certain types of cases arising in union affairs are not strictly union business. If there has been a big theft of money, for example, that is the business of the public courts. If there has been racketeering for extortion that, again, is something beyond the jurisdiction of the union courts. Indeed, in cases of theft, racketeering and extortion it is very likely that the court maintained by the

Studies Demand for Overtime Pay While Man Was 'Executive'

Oshkosh—(P)—Municipal Judge S. J. Luchinsger studied today the demand of Herbert Brunover for $500.24 from the Wisconsin Distributing company of Oshkosh for overtime, under the federal wage-hour law.

In what court attaches said they thought was the first case of its kind in Wisconsin, Brunover put in a claim covering from Oct. 24, 1938, when the law became effective, to March 13, 1939, when he left the company.

Brunover maintained he was given the title of "executive" during the period, although his duties were not changed. The case was appealed from justice court, where Brunover was awarded $37.50 plus costs.

The defense contended Brunover could, as an executive, be worked unlimited hours without additional pay.

Barlow Blames Local Units for Increased Taxes

State Faces Heavy Demands, New Department Head Tells Club

Neenah — Elmer E. Barlow, Arcadia attorney, recently appointed commissioner of the new state tax department, has tossed the blame for the additional $20,000,000 taxes, necessary for balancing the Wisconsin budget, back into the laps of the local as well as the federal governments.

Barlow, who was legal adviser to Governor Julius P. Heil until this week when he was appointed by the chief executive to head the new commission, charged the local and federal governments as well as the previous legislatures with the blame for the additional taxes in a talk at the noon meeting of the Neenah Rotary club Thursday at the Valley Inn.

Declaring that the local governments are continuously seeking greater amounts from the state government, Barlow charged that when the local units—the county boards, cities, towns and villages—reach their limits in taxation, they go to the state legislature which in turn charges it back to the taxpayers. He said its an "around the circle" practice when the local units are not forced to stay within their tax limits.

"Expenditures Less"
The state has reduced its actual expenditures more than $4,000,000, but the budget has been increased about $8,000,000 which is returned to the local units, parts of which has to be returned as the result of force from the federal government. If this wasn't needed for the state budget would have been reduced $4,000,000, Barlow stated.

He told the Rotarians, "You may ask me, and justly, too why must we have $20,000,000 in new and additional taxes?" The new commissioner pointed out that in previous operations of the state government, the total amount appropriated by the legislature was $72,000,000, but only $57,000,000 was raised through taxation, leaving a deficit of $15,000,000 for the 2-year period for the next legislature to work against. The legislature then proceeded to borrow from the highway fund and the teachers retirement fund, creating an indebtedness.

"We have reached the bottom of the well, and we can't reach out any more, and if we are to balance the budget, we must get $20,000,000 in addition to the regular income. We must balance the budget or there'll be no further paydays, unless we stop the highway program."

Barlow also scored the legislature. He said the governor asked for authority to reduce salaries of state employees 10 per cent, a reduction in expenses amounting to $4,000,000, but the legislature said no, and then he asked to reduce vacations of state employees from three to two weeks, saving $800,000, but the legislature refused.

At the outset of his address, Barlow explained the difference between the budget which is fixed by the legislature and permanent and revolving funds which aren't. He said the budget was only a small portion of the expenses of the state government. In analyzing the financial setup, the local units as well as the national government have a part. Representatives are interested in getting more and more from the state and national governments for their local units, and when Governor Heil went into office, there were 1,500 bills asking the state to assume to a greater extent local finances, including greater amounts for school aid, old age pension, dependent children and local relief. If all these bills had been passed, it would have bankrupted the state, he said.

For the years 1937 to 1939, out of the $73,000,000 received in taxes, $37,000,000 were returned to the local units.

Federal Wedge

The federal government forces the state to increase its budget. For instance, it puts a 1-cent tax on gasoline, giving the state 3,750,000 for highway work but only on condition that the state's gas tax, automobile license tax and driver's permit fees be used exclusively for the highways, and if it isn't, the federal government cuts one-third each year from its donation. The federal government, in other words, puts a wedge into the law which controls the spending of state funds.

The federal government also came in and increased the payment of old age pensions from $30 to $40. It passed a law fixing the standards, determining qualifications and the type and administration of the departments and it contributes $15,000,000 for old age and $5,000,000 for dependent children on a 50-50 basis.

Barlow said that in the 2-year period, $45,975,495 will be returned to the local government out of the $77,000,000 received, leaving $32,000,000 for the state government.

The federal government took care of the Bangs disease bureau in the state, but now the state has to pay 50 per cent or it will be withdrawn, adding another $500,000 to the budget. The state's share over and above the previous 2-year period is $4,183,263 for old age, $1,354,332 for dependent children and $1,625,692 for general relief.

Clapper Urges U.S. Caution In Peace Pact Participation

Washington—One thing came out of this week's phantom peace talk. It was the accidental disclosure that there exists within the United States a widespread assumption that this government will participate in fixing the terms of peace when the present European war—or more accurately, the great siege—is over.

Raymond Clapper The idea of our participating in the peace settlement is appalling. It is almost irresistible to argue that the United States should join in bringing about a "sound peace." The argument runs that we cannot remain isolated in the modern world, and that to attempt to do so would be to invite appalling armament expense. We would be wasting our great national influence for good. We should prevent imposition of a purely punitive peace.

We should prevent the drawing of frontiers which might invite future trouble as did those of Versailles. And so on into the night we dream of building a new world at the next peace conference.

That pattern is cut from the same piece of cloth which Woodrow Wilson was selling during the previous war. But it is the stuff of dreams, and is not the tough goods that will wear well in the real world.

Ask yourself some questions. What kind of peace terms does France want? Daadler says France has taken up arms against aggression and will lay them down only when there are guarantees of security which will not be put in doubt every six months. England says she is fighting to rid the world of the menace of Hitler and Hitlerism.

Then How Does Russia Fit Into the Picture?

Try to parse those aims and see if you can get anything that makes sense. Get rid of Hitler. Will the British and French take Goering? Do they merely want to make a god of Hitler and let Goering be the operating vice president? Do they want to wipe out nazism and force Germany to institute a democratic government again? What about Russia? Shall dictatorship be wiped out in Berlin but allowed to continue eating Baltic babies for breakfast in Moscow? Will Hitler disgorge Poland? Then shall Stalin be allowed to keep his share of Poland? Why does Britain now enter a deal to give Russia rubber and tin? Who knows the answers? Who knows what the real deal is between Stalin and Hitler. Or whether in the end Stalin will be half-way to India by the Persian route? That would make him a greater menace to Britain than Hitler.

The point is that no human being knows what the situation will be when the peace conference meets. Nobody knows whether it will be possible to have any kind of a peace that we could underwrite—and remember that, if we sit in on the peace conference, we shall be a moral underwriter for its results. There is a more important consideration than all of that. Can you

THIS WEEK'S GAMES
Friday
Simpson at Grinnell.
Saturday
Beloit at Cornell.
Carleton at Lawrence.
Coe at Bloomington.
Knox at Lake Forest.
Carroll at Ripon.

CONSIDERABLY enlightened about a lot of things, last week's defeat forgotten in the enthusiasm that comes with a good season, Lawrence college gridders are ready to meet Carleton college eleven here Saturday afternoon at Whitfield field. The kickoff is scheduled at 2 o'clock.

Carleton comes to Lawrence with two wins in Midwest conference play and with the inside track for the championship last year by the Vikings. Its victories are over Beloit last week and over Grinnell the week previous.

The Carls will put a team on the field headed by Dick Raiter a half-back who has been hailed as another Tag Senior and Senior was one of Carleton's greatest in recent years. He can run, pass or kick and Lawrence got its first taste of him a year ago so his ability isn't a story. Once in an open field he's almost unstoppable. There probably will be six lettermen in the starting lineup for the Carls.

Lawrence will send against the Carls a squad that appears to have possibilities but which so far has not clicked as well as Coach Heselton would like. It's true that the Vikings have played only two games, one against Northeast Teachers here and the other against Coe last week when he ruined whatever chances the men had.

Make Changes
The comparative lack of competition has resulted in errors which Heselton hasn't had time to correct until this week. They consist of replacing his weakside tackle end, trying a new blocker in the backfield and changing the style of play from that of last season.

One line change has seen John Messenger in the tackle slot occupied by Bill Weiss in the last two games. Messenger is lighter than Weiss but faster and at the present handicapped by an arm that is recovering from an accident that necessitated 25 stitches some weeks back. However, in workouts this week he didn't favor the wing and showed enough stuff to make Coach Heselton feel he'll be of considerable help.

The other line change may find Kirchoff starting at end instead of Nystrom. At least, Kirchoff will be in the wing position at various times during the afternoon for the fits into the picture well. Nystrom's defensive worth and experience can't be passed up, however.

The backfield change this week saw Dave Spaulding of Menasha in the blocker position. He's rugged and probably fast enough but this is his first season of ball and there are things about his play that probably could be better.

Cold May Help Jones
Lingle will get the other end assignment and has been doing well enough while Jones will be at the strong side tackle. Heselton eyed the drop in temperature of the last few days as a good sign for Jones. The big fellow doesn't like the heat and never has worked well when the mercury was up. If he's right it will mean a lot to Lawrence.

Powell and Florin seem certain of the guard posts although, with the need for speed, Zwergel may get one of the assignments. However, he isn't as rugged as the other two. Roddy, another big fellow, is a fourth possibility.

Whether Co-Captain Garvey will start at center probably won't be definite until game time. He has been missing from practice most of the week with a cold and may not be ready. In that event, McIntosh, a sophomore will toss the ball. He is taller but not as heavy and lacks the experience.

Backs a Question
The starting backfield also is a question. Spaulding has been used as the blocker much of the time and may start. If he doesn't it probably will be Romano. Co-Captain Buesing seems a certain starter as right half and no doubt will play an important part in the offense. The left half will be Nencki, a runner and passer. His defensive worth depends entirely on how much blocking he gets. Kaemmer, playing his second year of varsity ball, will be at fullback.

One thing is definite if the week's workouts are any indication—Lawrence won't play defensive ball alone. The Vikings have been perfecting their offense all week and they will count if given an opportunity.

He prepared himself for college after high school by taking courses in night school. Home: Oak Park, Ill.

Co-Capt. Richard Garvey, Center
Dick is in his third varsity year. Was a six letter man in Appleton High school. Working his way through college last year by driving taxi. Worked this summer and still is in the employment of the Power Co. Is not working during football season. Only interest at present is preparing for college graduation—after football season is completed.

Co-Capt. Kenneth Buesing, Halfback
Appleton boy; seven letter man in high school. He is in his last year in college and third year of varsity competition. Spent past summer selling and hauling furniture. Is one of the most prominent students in Lawrence college and holds more offices than seem humanly possible. Among them, president of L. club. Main interest after graduation is becoming a mortician.

With Cornell

Beloit —(P)—Midwest conference football teams are so well matched that Bud Butler, Beloit college coach, believes every school will suffer at least one defeat before the season ends.

"Just the same, I wish our setback hadn't come quite so soon," he said, thinking back to the Gold's 13-6 defeat by Carleton last week after Beloit's victory over Chicago the previous Saturday.

The Carleton game also left Bruno Virgili, senior quarterback and passer, on the sidelines with an injured knee which will keep him inactive at least three weeks and perhaps all season.

Jack Griffith, who had been operating at left half, will fill the quarterback post, and Eddie May, fleet Negro sophomore, will take over Griffith's old job. Loyl Plinske and Otis Andrews will alternate at fullback with Glen Johnson and Bill Day handling the right half assignment. All are seniors.

The high spot of Beloit's play to date has been the showing of the line, here sophomores fill several key positions. Forward pass defense has been giving coach Butler most of his trouble.

"We spent 60 per cent of our time perfecting a pass defense last week and it wasn't enough," he mused. "So we'll spend 100 per cent this week."

Becker Released by Pittsburgh Pro Team
Pittsburgh —(P)—Two more athletes were cut from the Pittsburgh Pirates pro grid roster today in the wake of the team's fourth straight defeat.

John Tosi, recruit center and guard from Niagara University, was sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers while Wayland Becker, a veteran end recently obtained from the Green Bay Packers, was given his outright release. Becker played college football at Marquette University.

high school. Top sophomore on varsity squad. Spends summers as director of playground in Milwaukee.

Robert Macintosh, Center
Another Milwaukee boy from East and one of Heselton's former boys. One of the top students in the sophomore class. High scholarship, first class personality, is counselor in Brook. Spends summer working in Milwaukee museum.

Alan Florin, Guard
A Chicago sophomore. All-city guard. Spent past summer preparing for football season by doing the many art of sorting music at the conservatory. Later traveled through middle-west as official timer at midget auto races. Is not only a mechanic but is a driver owning his own car. Majoring at Lawrence in the physical sciences. Would just as soon eat potato pancakes every day in the year with the exception of the day before a game.

Jarvis Lingle, End
A seven letter man from New Trier High school. Interested in newspaper work and radio announcing after leaving school (sports announcer). Has a hobby of collecting rare stamps. Is all for eating big steaks. Always tries to have a seven in his jersey number—good luck. No. 17 at Lawrence. Loves basketball next to football. Next sport—bowling.

John Messenger, Tackle
Green Bay boy, top athlete at East but always having had luck with injuries. Says its about time the jinx lets up and is looking forward to two more years of play. Also counselor in charge of frosh men. Greatly interested in amateur boxing—has done quite a bit of it.

Art Kaemmer, Fullback
The pride of Kiel, Wisconsin. If you're from Appleton and stop in Kiel you will be given the history of and asked your opinion of Art. Mother comes down to see him play every game.

Vince Jones, Tackle
Another Appleton contribution and the biggest griddler in Midwest conference. But he doesn't like it hot. Picked as all-midwest last season and all-state. Eating is his first love—and how he stows it away. Goes about 285 and weight seldom varies.

Fred Oliver, Halfback
Still another Appleton griddler. Worked on ice wagon along with a half dozen other Lawrence men this summer. He's only a sophomore but will come along. Good punter, can snare passes.

St. Norbert Gridders
Leave for Kansas Tilt
West De Pere —(P)—Nine sophomores were in the squad of St. Norbert college football players leaving today for Atchison, Kas. for a game with St. Benedict's college Sunday afternoon.

It will be the first game for the Knights since Sept. 30 because of the postponement of last week's game with Carroll. Despite the extra practice, Coach Mickey McCormick was not optimistic over the outcome. St. Benedict's won last year's game, 25 to 6, and nearly all of Coach Marty Peter's present squad saw action against the Knights last year.

Ripon Plays Click for Carroll Reserve Squad
Waukesha —(P)—Ripon plays clicked too effectively against Carroll to suit Coach Johnny Brown yesterday, but the Pioneers were in good shape for their game with the Redmen at Ripon tomorrow.

Coach Art Buck, former Carroll star, impersonated Ray Krcmar, Ripon triple threat man, in a second-string backfield that scored effectively against the varsity. More than 200 Carroll students will make the trip on a special train.

Ripon —(P)—Ripon college meets Carroll in dad's day game here tomorrow, determined to break the jinx which has given the Pioneers an unbroken string of football victories over Ripon since 1931. The Redmen will depend upon a ground attack and the long distance punting of Sarge Peters, fullback. Seven sophomores will be among the Ripon starters.

Lawrence-Carleton: We don't feel Lawrence will do so badly against the Carls but we still can't see them winning. We'd get a huge wallop out of it if they did. So it's Carleton with Lawrence putting up a stubborn fight.

Clintonville-Kaukauna: We've picked the Kaws on some really tough games and we only hope they don't let us down on this apparently easy one. Kaukauna.

West DePere-New London: This may be New London's toughest contest to date but we'll stick with the Bulldogs.

Neenah-Menasha St. Mary: A half dozen or so "loyal" Neenah gridders quit the squad during the week. It would appear their action will give the Zephyrs a win.

Green Bay East-Fond du Lac: John Walter said he thought Fondy would give East a battle. He's talking through his bonnet, sez we. East and easy.

Oshkosh-Manitowoc: Who tossed that one into our guesses? Judging entirely on all the glowing words Dick Davis recently had for Manitowoc, we'll take the Ships. If we are wrong we'll blame Dick.

Omro-Marion: Once more Marion will take it on the chin.

St. John, Little Chute-Edgewood: Madison: The Chuters will put up a battle but they won't win.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

WE HAVEN'T HEARD many cracks about our inability to pull football winners out of the hat so apparently we are doing fairly well. At any rate, when we go to games these days there aren't a dozen or so guys making cracks about the ones we missed. So, taking a deep breath, here goes for this week. Stop us if we're wrong.

Lawrence-Carleton: We don't feel Lawrence will do so badly against the Carls but we still can't see them winning. We'd get a huge wallop out of it if they did. So it's Carleton with Lawrence putting up a stubborn fight.

Clintonville-Kaukauna: We've picked the Kaws on some really tough games and we only hope they don't let us down on this apparently easy one. Kaukauna.

Omro-Marion: Once more Marion will take it on the chin.

St. John, Little Chute-Edgewood: Madison: The Chuters will put up a battle but they won't win.

Kimberly-Manawa: Ray Hamann has uncovered the best Little Chute griddler right in Kimberly High school. So we'll pick Kimberly to win.

Beloit - Cornell: The Beloit bubble has burst, or will have burst after the Cornell game. Cornell.

Carroll-Ripon: Two good old rivals will tangle in this encounter and while Ripon may surprise we're not ready to call it that way. Carroll has too much stuff left from last season.

Notre Dame-Southern Methodist: These Mustangs are really hard to ride as Oklahoma would be ready to testify. They have speed and a clever attack. Notre Dame barely squeezed past Purdue and Georgia Tech but the point is the Ramblers did get by. We'll take Notre Dame, freely admitting it's largely through force of habit.

Pitt-Duke: This is no spot for experting so the coin is flipped . . . and says Pitt.

Tulane - Fordham: The nod must go to Tulane.

Southern California-Illinois: Can't see how any of Bob Zuppke's slyest tricks can save the Illini. Southern California.

Texas Aggies-Villanova: Taking Texas A. and M. with due warning to watch out for Nick Basca.

Temple - Texas Christian: Temple's tight defensively but has revealed no scoring punch, explaining this ballot for T. C. U.'s Horned Frogs.

North Carolina-New York Uni.: This vote goes to North Carolina. Georgia-Holy Cross: Out of that hat, Holy Cross.

Big Ten Football Favorites to Get First Shakedown

Gophers vs. Purdue, Michigan vs. Iowa, Badgers vs. Indiana

CHICAGO —(P)—Pre-season speculation on Big Ten football title favorites gets its first showdown tomorrow.

Of the five teams classed as ranking championship contenders, four were paired off in the day's top attractions.

Minnesota's defending champions and Purdue, beaten only by the Gophers last year, take a mighty stride toward settling their 1939 title futures in a game at Minneapolis.

Northwestern, with a starting backfield of three sophomores, and Ohio State, a team it tied last year, engage in a similar stand-off at Columbus.

Michigan's Wolverines, the fifth ranking contender to open its conference drive tomorrow, takes on the current Big Ten leader, Eddie Anderson's surprising Iowa Hawkeyes. The Hawkeyes first smothered South Dakota and last week followed with a 32-29 triumph over Indiana, but injuries will leave them shy of manpower for the Michigan bout.

Indiana, well versed this year in "throwing the ball around," goes up against an unknown quantity, Wisconsin's Badgers.

The Big Ten's other members tackle non-conference foes from opposite sides of the nation. Chicago entertains Harvard, while Illinois opposes Southern California in the far west. Notre Dame meantime, will go after its third straight victory in a home game with Southern Methodist.

Here's How They Ended Week
Here is how the respective clubs wound up yesterday's drills:

Purdue entrained for Minneapolis after a short workout with the probability that Mike Eyselen would handle most of Lou Brock's chores at halfback because of the latter's ankle injury. Minnesota continued to drill on defense and will be out to protect a record of never having lost two games in a row since 1932.

A long session at placement kicking occupied Ohio State, while Northwestern turned in a very satisfactory forward passing drill. Michigan, too, polished its aerial attack, with Tom Harmon at the firing end. Iowa worked on defense for Wolverine plays.

Wisconsin continued to show improvement and will be at full strength with halfback Tony Gradinski and fullback George Paskvan ready to go. Indiana held a light drill centered principally on covering punt returns.

Menasha St. Mary's Sees Win Over Neenah High Saturday

MENASHA — St. Mary's High school gridders will clash with the Neenah High school football team at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the ninth renewal of their rivalry at Butte des Morts field. The Rockets have won six games to date in the series and the Zephyrs only two but Saturday may give the Zephyrs a chance to even some of the score.

Both teams will be anxious for victory Saturday as each already has three defeats on its record. Neenah dropped conference decisions to Kaukauna and New London and faded in the last quarter to lose a non-conference game to Mesmer, High of Milwaukee.

The Zephyrs have lost to Kaukauna, New London and Edgewood academy of Madison but have defeated St. Joseph's Indian school of Keshena. Comparing scores indicate that they will have an advantage Saturday. Kaukauna, champions of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, defeated both teams, Neenah 27 to 7 and St. Mary's 26 to 6.

The Zephyrs scored first against Kaukauna while the Rockets scored in the final period against a reserve team. Neenah lost to New London 9 to 0 while the Zephyrs dropped a 13 to 12 decision. The Zephyrs have converted on only three of eight extra point attempts and have missed two tie games because of that failure.

Touch Up Plays
In drills Thursday Coach Robert Zuercher had two squads touching up on the execution of plays. The team on offensive blocked against dummy opposition. The squad on offense included Johnson and Day at ends, Giesen and Folhat tackles, Burkhardt and Birling at guards, Rothe at center, D. Hoks at quarter, Coopman and Resch at halves and Rieschl at fullback.

The team on defense included Taves, Griesbach and Mottl in the backfield with Miller, Verbrick, Bayer, Lallier, the two Lingnosks, Huelbeck and Schuller on defense. That group took the offense later with Resch performing in the backfield on both squads.

At the same time Sam Kraus was drilling the reserve squad for its practice contest with the Appleton High reserves, scheduled for this afternoon at Jefferson park. Goal posts have been erected at the park, giving the Zephyrs a chance to some much-needed practice on extra point conversions.

Officials Saturday will be Neabaart and Brisse of Appleton and Wheeler of Oshkosh.

Badgers Work Against Passes

Wisconsin Ready for Big Ten Opener; Doyle Unable to Play

MADISON—Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced yesterday that Johnny Doyle, alternate University of Wisconsin center, would be kept from the Indiana game here tomorrow. It will be the first Big Ten game for the Badgers.

Doyle, out with a leg injury since before the opening game of the season, had not come along satisfactorily and Stuhldreher believed another week of rest will do him more good than endangering the injured leg with rough contact work.

The squad ran through defensive maneuvers yesterday, concentrating mainly on passing. Indiana's powerful overhead attack, which clicked so well against Iowa last week, was expected to be a potent factor in Coach Bo McMillin's attack.

George Paskvan, La Grange, Ill., junior fullback, was definitely on the starting eleven. He had shown well all week and should add to the offensive and defensive power of the Badgers.

Bill Schmitz, right halfback, and Dick Embick, right guard, both regulars, were released from the hospital where they were suffering from colds. Schmitz was expected to start but Orville Fox, who worked in nicely as a reserve throughout the week, probably will start in place of Embick.

After an hour workout on Camp Randall practice field, Stuhldreher took his charges into the fieldhouse where work on kickoffs was stressed.

The Hoosiers will spend tonight in Janesville and come to Madison early tomorrow morning.

The quint compiled a 982 game and a 2,639 series for team honors and took two games from Big Dipper to gain a tie for the league lead with Cary Oil Burners. F. Bendt topped a 210 game. K. Petersen Press took the odd game from Zwickler Knitting as H. Kostizke steamed 216 and A. Jimos clattered 531. H. Starck showed 486 for the losers.

Valley Sports downed Knoke Lumber company in two games as K. Zimmerman crowded 515 and 192. H. Council whipped a 527 series and P. Menning banged 204 for the losing team.

Charlie Keller Doesn't Like All This Attention

FREDERICK, MD.—(7)—Charlie Keller doesn't like it very much, but he's a hero to a lot of people who want to shake the hands that knocked two home-runs in a world-series game.

Keller, six years removed from the Middletown High school team, came home Wednesday with only a rough idea of what his public planned for him. If he had any hope for a rest after the Yankees' anti-Cincinnati campaign, he found he had reckoned without his hosts—the ones who wanted to give him dinners.

The town-bands planned a parade to escort him from his new house to the banquet the city gave, but he would have none of it. Keller didn't talk very much at the banquet, but he said he was grateful for the automatic shotgun the home-folk gave him. He used to like to hunt—in the days when he had some leisure.

French-Hartnett Team Is Winner in West Bend Contest

West Bend, —(7)—Larry French and Gabby Hartnett made an efficient battery yesterday as West Bend defeated a team composed of Milwaukee minor league baseball players, 7 to 6.

French, Chicago Cubs' southpaw who complained late last season because catcher-manager Hartnett was not starting him enough, struck out 16 Milwaukeeans but gave a home-run pitch to Stan Galle. Milwaukee Brewers' rookie shortstop, Hartnett homered for West Bend.

T. C. U. Has Makings of Good Team but Lacks Drive, Spirit

BY FELIX R. MCKNIGHT

DALLAS—(7)—Something vital is missing from Texas Christian's football team.

Not so much the physical presence of Davey O'Brien, Ki Aldrich and the rest of those undefeated 1938 workers, but, more likely, their drive and spirit.

Talent is still at hand. The Christians, a surging power that never stood still last year, are still a good football team. They have lost their first two games, but only by a total of five points.

Statistically, T. C. U. is still a power. Against U. C. L. A. and Arkansas the Christians moved around for 32 first downs and 636 yards from scrimmage while the enemy managed only 23 first downs and 416 yards. The old aerial game that winged them to national supremacy last season hasn't faltered. Not when they completed 33 of 64 passes in both games and actually gained 287 yards by air against Arkansas.

Where does the trouble lie? Coach Leo (Dutch) Meyer, tugging his hair, said Arkansas scrapped back in the fourth period and pulled out a 14-13 victory, muttered:

"I'm afraid they out-fought us. I had no complaints after the U. C. L. A. game. The boys played fine football. But against Arkansas—they out-fought us." (ULCA won, 7-3).

Texas Christian annexed 12 straight games in '38 on skill and hustle.

Perennial slow starters, T. C. U. teams usually pick up the gait in October. Perhaps this staid "wonder team" will pick up the thread of the '38 bunch.

But it hasn't found it yet.

Billy Direct Sets Two Pacing Records

Altamont, N. Y.—(7)—Billy Direct, the greatest pacer of them all, holds two new world's records today for a half-mile race track.

In a special Columbus day meeting, Billy Direct went a mile in two minutes flat, then teamed with the witower, owned by W. F. Hetherington, Rhinebeck, N. Y., to shatter the team mark for the mile in 2:04.

Owned by Dan McConville, Ogdensburg, N. Y., and Pat Downey, Worcester, Mass., the champion was handled by two sons of Vic Fleming, veteran trainer and driver.

Charles Fleming drove the team while William Fleming rode to the other record.

over Dubuque University last week have been drilled on defense to stop the veteran Milwaukee backfield.

Hilltoppers Ready For Michigan State

Milwaukee—(7)—A light-hearted but determined Marquette University football team entrained late yesterday for East Lansing, Mich., where the Golden Avalanche meets Michigan State tomorrow afternoon.

No defeatist complex was evident as the Marquette squad of 31 pulled stakes after a final light workout. Chuck Pfeiffer, regular left tackle, stayed behind with a mouth injury. He may be ready for Southern Methodist next week.

Acting Captain Gil Thomsen, Kenosha end, led the squad through signal practice, sprints and last-minute scrimmage against freshmen using Spartan plays. Coach Paddy Driscoll's apparent choices to start in the backfield were Bill Phillips at quarter, Jimmy Richardson and Warren Hall at the halves, and Doug Renzel at fullback.

Swede Johnson, former Appleton griddle and national pro league veteran, has been lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates team for about two weeks because of a chipped bone in his knee. Johnson recently was transferred from the Green Bay Packers to the Pirates who tangle with the Washington Redskins at the nation's capital Sunday. Ernie Wheeler, Sensational Pirate recruit who has been out with a foot injury, will return to action in the tilt.

New London—With little known about the West DePere High school gridiron machine except that it lost to Shawano 20 to 0 and beat Clintonville by a scant 13 to 7, Coach Greg Charlesworth's Red and White is ready to take on the Black Panthers in the third Northeastern Wisconsin conference game under the lights at the city ball park tonight. The New London boys are undefeated in three starts this year.

The opening kickoff is scheduled for 8:15. There'll be no pep parade by the student body tonight of a dance after the game, but the boys on the field will be fighting just the same. Blocking and more blocking has been stressed by Coach Charlesworth the last week and pass defense has been strengthened. The starting lineup is expected to be the same that began against Neenah last week.

A pep meeting was held by the student body in Washington High school auditorium yesterday afternoon and two new cheer leaders were appointed, Dorothy Allen and Lois Palmer who led the yelling last year. Another will be named by the student council next week to fill the vacancy left by Bernard Freiburger who joined the football squad. There will be five cheerleaders this year instead of three.

TRUCKS LOSE END

Clintonville—The Clintonville High school football team will take to the road for the first time this season when it invades Kaukauna Saturday afternoon to meet the apparent champions of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference's Western division. The Clints have fallen by the wayside in three conference games while the Kaws have kept their record clean. The odds will be against Clintonville Saturday afternoon inasmuch as Kaukauna marked up an impressive 13 to 8 win over the Shawano Indians last week.

Clintonville will be without the services of Myrl Korb, end, who started the game last Friday evening against Menasha and who will be out for the remainder of the season with a fractured collar bone. This injury was the first to be suffered by the Clints this season and is really the only serious injury a Clintonville squad member has had in several years.

Milton College Wins Over Mission House

Plymouth—(7)—Milton won its second game in two starts in the Tri-State Football conference last night, defeating Mission House 13 to 0.

Gschwandtner, Milton left half, intercepted a pass on the first play of the second quarter, and ran to the Muskies' 38. Five line plays advanced the ball to the 5-yard line, from where Hull went under his right end for a touchdown. Schuler kicked the point.

Keland and Burick blocked a Mission House punt early in the third quarter, and Gschwandtner fell on it behind the goal line for a touchdown. Bladorn missed the kick.

Mission House has won one and lost one in the conference.

Do you want ALL-WINTER RADIATOR PROTECTION FOR ONLY $1.50?

HERE'S THE WAY many car owners do it every year: They put in a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone" early in the season for protection against rusting and sudden cold snaps.

When it gets really cold, they add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. A total of six quarts, put in as needed, can protect a car with an average size cooling system (15 quarts) for the entire winter. And six quarts of "Zerone" cost only $1.50!

You may need a little more or less, depending on the condition and capacity of your car radiator and the severity of winter in your neighborhood. But the efficiency of "Zerone" will save you real money.

"Zerone" prevents rust and corrosion, gives better dissipation of engine heat, avoids power losses. And remember, it's only $1.00 a gallon, 25¢ a quart.

worse than that I had a couple of cases of beer at one time. And I wish I had, for it was hard to get during prohibition."

After explaining the organization and functions of the conservation commission and the conservation department, MacKenzie urged hunters to use care with fires in the forests.

He explained why the Ohio valley is threatened with floods season, and warned that the same thing can happen to Wisconsin if the forests and other vegetation is not conserved. He said that nature meant that the rain and snow should be absorbed by trees and vegetation. Floods and soil erosion are the result of denuding the land of trees, MacKenzie said.

"If you don't protect our forests and marshes in Wisconsin, the same thing may happen here," the conservation director warned. You can't have fish and game or any kind of life when you denude the land of trees and vegetation. The marshes also must be saved as cover for game birds."

Can't Replace Forests

"Remember, you can't replace a burned building but you can't replace a forest which has been gutted by fire."

MacKenzie outlined the state's fish propagation program and told his audience that for the last three years more than a billion fish per year have been planted in Wisconsin waters. The fish are raised in the department's 85 hatcheries and more than 100 ponds.

He explained the department's methods of distributing and planting fish but admitted there is much to be learned before peak efficiency can be reached.

"Only the surface has been scratched in the study of fish life but we have many research men working every day to find out better methods of propagation and planting," the speaker said.

MacKenzie predicted that more than 500,000 pheasants would be killed by hunters in the state this year, almost double the number that fell before hunters' guns last year. He said 250,000 pheasant cocks were raised at the Poyntelle game farm this year alone.

Urges Conservation

He urged conservation of the game birds and animals as well as the forests, he said, "after all, the forests, birds and animals are all yours and it's only good sense to protect them."

Mark Catlin, Sr., a member of the commission, spoke briefly and Wilbur Steens, president of the county conservation club, listed the work done by his organization during the last summer.

Motion pictures taken by the conservation department in northern Wisconsin were shown and the Johnsons gave demonstrations of trick shooting and marksmanship with rifles, pistols and shotguns. They also talked on the safe handling of firearms.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

her time and hasn't bothered me with questions."

Weekes said pointedly: "She's pretty! Did you hear me tell you so?"

"Her name is Buff," Tim had the air of a man who has performed his whole duty.

"And you think that describes her, my dear chap? Far, far from it. I have an idea it's a nickname, earned by her achievements as a shock-absorber. Any notion what color her hair is?"

Tim shook his head.

"It's like gold. Raw yellow gold. You used to be familiar with the color, old man. How come you to miss it now? True, she wears it so unobtrusively as possible, but it's gorgeous hair, just the same. Her eyes—"

He stopped for Corliss's hands were opening and closing; there was a fine beading of perspiration along his upper lip.

"George, tell me . . . I've been trying to get up enough nerve to ask you every time you come. Have you—is there—"

Weekes replied baldly: "You're wanting to ask me if there's any further news of Iris DeMuth. The answer is: no; and God be thanked for that," he ended piously.

Silence fell upon the room. Beneath the open window came the sound of voices: Buff Carroll speaking to Atkins; Atkins' almost inaudible reply. Suddenly words poured from Tim Corliss in a torrent.

"George, I can't yet believe it! That it happened to me, I mean! I wake up in the night and I think it's something I dreamed—something I read in the paper. She was—is—so sweet, so . . . when she smiles, George, it's absolutely incredible that she . . . but when I distrust my own knowledge there's your, of course. The thing is—what torments me is—thinking that perhaps I could have prevented—if it hadn't been for my damn carelessness—if I hadn't gone to Idaho Springs for those ten days—"

"Pipe down, old man," his friend said gently, "Remember it wasn't only Iris. There was—Lashaw, too."

Advice

"At this, Tim's face went down into his hands and he sat so still that a belated butterfly sailed in and alighted on his shoulder. George viewed the pretty thing with bitter eyes. Just so had Iris—Iris of the wistful eyes and graceful limbs—come to rest against the kindness and simplicity and belief in the goodness of all women that was Tim Corliss; rested briefly and moved her painted wings and flew away. But unlike the butterfly, she had left a poisoned barb behind. With an abrupt movement Weekes started the insect into flight.

"Snap out of it, guy!" he admonished his partner. "It's over and done with; nothing left for you—for us—but to forget the whole infernal business."

"If only you hadn't been drawn into it, George!"

They had been over this ground many times. Weekes made the only answer that helped the other.

"I was, and that's that; and the sooner you get well enough to take your place in the office, the sooner we'll both be on the upgrade again. You owe it to me, Tim, to shake this off as quickly as possible."

Tim's face was haggard but purposeful when he lifted it.

"Yes," he assented. And again, "Yes, I'm coming along, coming along. In another week or two—"

His friend studied him anxiously. It didn't seem to him that Corliss was making improvement. George thrust his hands in his pockets and pondered. As a result of his thoughts, he approached Buff late that afternoon when Tim was installed on the veranda, his crutches close at hand.

"Buff—you don't mind if I call you Buff, do you? Thanks. I'd like your advice, if you'd be kind enough to give it."

"Advice?" She reached for a bit of wild sage, sniffed its clean fragrance. "What about?"

"Tim, I'm worried about him. Not his leg. That's coming along all right, Westland says."

"I know what you mean." Her small face assumed a look of gravity to match his own. "He's upset about something, terribly upset. It isn't only overwork, is it—as he told me?"

"No, it's not overwork. Tim's strong as a horse. He—he had a shock. A bad one. I wonder if I ought to tell you about it?"

"Please don't. It's sort of taking advantage of his being here, don't you think? Suppose we just let it go at what you've said: he's had a shock. It's affected his health." She smiled at him suddenly and he jumped. "What can we do to help him?"

"Golly!" said the startled young man. "That's some smile of yours. Did you ever turn it on Tim?"

"I don't know," he wouldn't know either. He might turn flipflops all over his room, or stick out his tongue at him—I doubt if he'd notice. I'm just a voice to him. That's all right, too," she went on comfortably. "All he needs at present is a nice soothing voice. The impingement of another personality—"

"Hey!" he exclaimed, aggrieved. "If it's psychology, I don't know any. And if it's classical English, I majored in mining and civil engineering. Please don't go highbald on me."

"A Love Affair"

She explained with youthful dignity. "I simply meant that unless I can keep myself in the background—part of the scenery, in fact—Time will depart hence. Is that clear to you? If you want to know," she continued with a hint of malice, "it's about all I can endure to have you here. I let you come—I ask you to come! Because it's good for him. But what he'd really like is to sink back into his thoughts and just remember what ever it was that happened to him. That's what he was doing when I got here. It was a love affair, wasn't it?"

"Thought you didn't want to hear about it?" he grinned. "But yes, it was a love affair; at least, that was part of it. What really happened was that the sky fell down on Tim, the earth broke up into chunks beneath his feet. . . . the world, for the time being, at least, came to an end for him. He's trying to pick himself up again. The trouble is he thinks it isn't worth while. He'd sooner go down into oblivion than make the effort."

"Then why doesn't he? I mean—why is he really fighting to put this experience behind him? Because of you?"

"A little; but mostly because he's a real man," he assured her earnestly. "If you knew the whole story—some day you'll be going to know it—you'd realize that Tim's rather taken a beating, in more ways than one." He cleared his throat. "You've been kind to him. Go on being so, will you?"

Just before he left the ranch Sunday afternoon he concluded his Boy Scout endeavors, this time in the direction of Tim.

"Listen, fellow!" He leaned forward, his hands swinging loosely between his knees. "You might show a little appreciation of Buff's efforts to look after you, you know!"

"Look after me! Why should she or any other girl look after me? I'm no child even!" his mouth twisted wryly—"even if I did behave like one!"

"I mean—showing you hospitality, and all that," his partner hastily corrected himself. "She's a kind little person and—inspiration descended upon him like a gift from heaven—"not too happy herself. I got a distinct impression that she's passing through some trouble of her own."

It was the right note. Tim looked at the girl with a new gaze when they next met; really looked at her. Her blue eyes did seem shadowed, he thought, and he seemed to remember that once or twice they had showed signs of recent tears.

From that time on he was curiously gentle with her. Just as Buff

Portrait Of A Healthy All-American

He's got quick and ready energy for those 90 yard touchdown scampers . . .

W-h-i-z-z—Junior's off for another touchdown! Look at that boy go—he certainly "burns up" territory! Strange, too, when you stop to think that only a season or so back Junior was underweight, dull and listless. He'd tire easily . . . wander about the house . . . and if a boy lacked energy—it was Junior! Then one day his mother, upon recommendation, served Schaefer's Milk. She discovered that the boy liked its flavor immensely. He drank more. It seemed to pick up his appetite.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—There's irony in the success of Garbo's new picture, "Ninotchka." There's also an object lesson for every producer in town, if he will only heed it.

Fidler

For years, Metro had been starring the Garbo in super-colossal, each one boasting bigger sets, bigger casts—and bigger costs—than its predecessors. And for years Garbo's popularity had been waning. The grand climax was reached with "Conquest." That cinematic lemon, on the one hand, established a new high in extravagance, and, on the other hand, deflated Garbo's popularity to a new low. Had it not been for her box-office power in Europe, Metro would undoubtedly have condemned her forthwith to the guillotine, for not even the most optimistic M-G-M'er believed she could stage a comeback with American audiences. However, because Europe still liked her, the studio chaps decided on one more picture—but a cheap picture, this time "Ninotchka," costing about one-fourth the amount usually spent on Garbo productions, is the result. It's a knockout, one of the most subtle, chucklesome satires screened in many a moon. I believe that it is very apt to re-establish Garbo as a top-flight favorite.

So much for the irony—and now for the lesson. It's high time for Hollywood to wake up and grasp the fact that lavish sets, costumes and mob scenes, instead of pleasing audiences, often do just the opposite. Producers have tried for years to find some costly formula to substitute for the one primary picture need, a good story. To date, there is no substitute.

Idol Chatter: Hitler-haters, suggesting possible punishments for Der Fuehrer, have overlooked a horrible best bet—why not deliver him to the mercies of Hollywood's autograph-hunting mob? Justifiable mispronunciations. Mouths Raye. Watching Gary Cooper's performances today, and recalling some he gave several years ago, how can anyone argue that actors are born, not made? Peas-in-a-pod Priscilla Lane and former-star Dolores Costello. Amazing how Nelson Eddy's publicity has dwindled since his marriage. In-a-word description of Mae West's dialogue, seltzer-sopranos.

Lunched in the Twentieth Century-Fox cafe with Brenda Joyce and listened while she ecstatically described a new fur coat she had just purchased.

He started his career, with two degrees in science from the University of Washington. Then he began drawing artistic title cards for Christie's silent comedies, which launched Norman Z. McLeod on the road leading him to a place as one of Hollywood's ace directors. Mr. McLeod is now completing work on "Remember."

chased Suddenly, she stopped and asked the identity of a striking middle-aged woman seated at a nearby table. I was able to tell her that the woman in question is a one-time star, who now works—as a dress extra. Brenda looked thoughtful. "I'm wondering," she mused, "moments later, 'what's the best way I could return that fur coat!'"

Quotes and comment A magazine gossip scribe "Rudy Vallee is the reason Wendy Barrie has given up smoking and taken up knitting." Just an old-fashioned boy, eh? Leslie Howard "In motion picture pictures, actors are merely puppets before a camera—they only come to Hollywood for money." Surprise! Madeleine Carroll: "I have no Oomph or anything like that." A case then, when a figure does lie Tyrone Power "If a man is astute, he knows when a girl is trying to make him jealous." Check—but what happens next?

Browsing through a Warner Brothers office, I picked up a copy of the shooting script for "On Your Toes," which stars great-dancer Zorina. On the title page was a list of characters, each one followed by a brief description. After the character name of Zorina, was this priceless tid-bit: "She is a stunning beauty and many of her best features are not concealed by her costume." Hmmmmmm!—her pictures should be box-office. Federal Grant of $52,000 Approved For Power House

Senator Notifies Mayor of Action by President Roosevelt

Kaukauna — Mayor Lewis F. Nelson yesterday received a telegram from Senator Alexander Wiley, stating that a grant of $51,622 has been approved by President Roosevelt for the power house project. The money will be used to help construct the power house proper, as another WPA grant was received at the outset for labor and materials on other parts of the job. It was originally thought by the utility department to get a PWA grant for the powerhouse, and provision was made for the commission to borrow $30,000 to match a government grant, but this did not materialize.

The excavation work for the power house has been started, although most of the work has been in the tailrace and channel excavation. The generator and turbine for the powerhouse have been ordered. Weather conditions this winter are expected to determine the rate of progress on the job. Power may be generated by Oct. 1940 if work runs according to schedule.

HERE IS GOOD NEWS! — Amazing Experiences of Relief with RUX Reported by Prominent Appleton People Crowds Flock to Great Medicine Sale at Local Drug Store.

MR. HARRY CHIVINGTON

The great sale of RUX Compound still goes on, and each day the fame of this remarkable medicine spreads throughout Appleton and vicinity as more and more people hear from the lips of grateful users their amazing stories of relief.

An Amazing Experience

Only one of a flood of letters recently received is this statement of welcome relief by Mr. Harry Chivington, well-known resident of Appleton, Wisconsin, (220 North Oneida Street).

"I had an attack of Rheumatic Pains which struck me in my leg and I want to say it sure felt just like a sharp knife had been thrust in the flesh. It made work and walking hard on me, and at night the pain was so bad I could hardly sleep.

"I learned about RUX Compound as being recommended for relief of Rheumatic Pains and as I was sorely in need of relief I started using it. I was agreeably surprised after a while to see how RUX had taken hold of my pains and as I continued the medicine these distressing pain attacks have become less and less, until now they are hardly bothering me at all

"I feel so much better, and can rest well at night. I feel that RUX has been a wonderful blessing to me and I will be glad to tell others about it."

If you are a Rheumatic Sufferer — if your body is racked with sharp, stabbing muscular pain attacks that make life a torment — if you roll and toss through sleepless nights, feel unfit for work or pleasure because of cruel Rheumatic, Neuragic or Neuritic pains, you should go to

"PRESTONE" anti-freeze is used in more cars made since 1933 than all other brands combined!*

Here's why

One shot of "Prestone" anti-freeze lasts all winter long. There's no worry. No boiling off. No replacing. "Prestone" anti-freeze users are safe and they know it!

The wide preference for "Prestone" brand anti-freeze extends to cars of all makes and ages. For "Prestone" anti-freeze has behind it more experience, more research and more success than any other brand of anti-freeze ever made.

That's why so many motorists—of anti-automobile investments—with real automobile investments to protect—refuse to use boil-away alcohol preparations claimed to be "just as tried products claimed to be" just as good." See your "Prestone" anti-freeze dealer today!

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

INDIANS AND SPANIARDS

For three months, Columbus and his sailors stayed in the New World. While they were on the island of San Salvador, they found that some of the Indians there were wearing golden ornaments. Using signs, they asked where the gold had come from, and in reply the natives pointed toward the southwest.

Taking that to mean the gold had been mined on another island, Columbus set sail in the direction given. He found another island, but no gold mine.

In later days and weeks, the three small vessels sailed to island after island. Time and again they tried to find gold, but were told it came from some other place.

The largest island visited was Cuba. Columbus felt that this place was a wonderland. He gazed at the palm trees "which bore large leaves which the natives used to cover their houses."

The natives kept dogs as pets, and we are told the animals did not know how to bark. (Some persons today would rather have this kind of a dog!)

Going some distance inland, Columbus saw many kinds of birds. He later declared Cuba to be "the most beautiful island eyes have ever seen." There were deep rivers, and pleasant mountains.

The admiral sent two men on an exploring journey through Cuba. This is what he tells about them: "After traveling a dozen leagues, they came to a town containing about fifty houses. Each house was the home of many persons, and the town probably had a population of about 1,000.

"The natives flocked to behold them, gave them lodging in their best houses, kissed their hands and feet, and made signs of wonder. The natives believed that their visitors had come from heaven.

Using sign language the Indians of Cuba told the white men that their island produced gold, but no gold mine was found at the time.

After having been away from Spain for seven months, Columbus returned, and was treated with high honor. Later he made three more voyages to the New World. On his third voyage, he sailed along a section of the coast of South America.

Columbus died in Spain in 1506, not quite 14 years after he first crossed the Atlantic. It seems that he believed to the end that he had found islands off the coast of Asia.

About 30 years after his death, a map of the New World was made. It was not a true map, as compared with maps of today, but it did give some idea of North and South America.

A friend of Columbus wrote that he was of more than average height. "His nose," said the friend, "was strong. His eyes were blue. The blond hair of his youth turned white at an early age."

New Strain of Leghorns Solves Sexing Problem

Leghorns are good egg producers, but because they are smaller than most other breeds they are not in demand as a meat breed. For this reason poultrymen prefer sexed leghorn chicks so that they can get more females. Hatchery reports show an increased demand for sexed chicks, according to a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, county agent.

At the Agricultural Research center, Beltsville, Md., poultry geneticists of the federal bureau of animal industry are working on a strain of golden leghorns of good production qualities, with the added advantage that the day-old chicks may be sexed by down color. The female chicks are darker in color than the males.

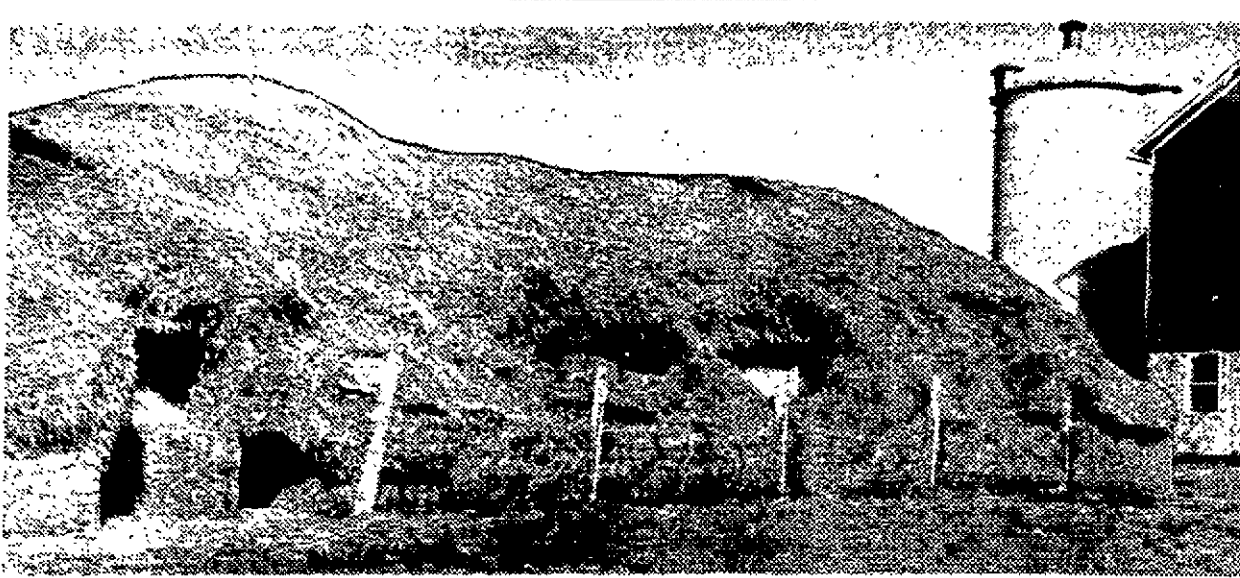

The new strain came from a foundation cross of superior Rhode Island reds and white leghorns. Sexing is being made for egg production, egg weight, and body weight. Charts showing the progress in breeding these birds were exhibited at the recent World's Poultry congress. The average body weight of the golden leghorn hen is slightly more than 4 pounds compared with 4 pounds for the white leghorn hen. This new variety is still in the formative stage and no hatching eggs or breeding stock are available for distribution by the department.

Advise Use of Sugar Beet Tops for Stock

Menasha—Use of beet tops as livestock feed has been recommended to Winnebago sugar beet growers by Gus Bohstedt, of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture, according to R. C. Heffernan, Winnebago county agricultural agent.

Cattle or livestock may be turned into the field to eat the tops which have been cut off and left lying about. The tops also may be put in small casks to cure for a while and then hauled to the barn or feed lot as needed.

Beet tops also may be ensiled which improves the feeding value of the tops. If the tops are ensiled when freshly cut, one part straw or corn stalks for every four or five parts of beet tops by weight will give a good moisture content to the silage. If the tops have been lying outside and have lost their moisture, one-half that amount of straw will be enough.

STRAW BARN HOUSES CALVES AND CHICKENS

When Leonard Steinberg, route 2, Hortonville, found he needed housing for chickens and calves and that he had a lot of straw on hand, he built the straw barn shown above. Steinberg states that it has proved practical and that he intends to keep the structure up throughout the winter. Baled straw was used for the walls of the barn and loose straw was thrown over a wooden framework for the roof. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Dairymen to Study Advertising Plan

State Meeting Will be Held by Association
At Marshfield

Dairymen from all sections of the state will attend the first annual meeting of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association at Marshfield next Wednesday to discuss participation in a nation-wide campaign for advertising dairy products.

Optimism prevails among Wisconsin dairymen that a national program for advertising dairy products jointly with other dairy states can be financed through funds raised by the dairy industry, according to Bryce Landt, Wisconsin Dells, president of the organization, who will serve as chairman of the meeting.

Iowa, Minnesota, and Washington dairymen already have raised their established quota for participation in such a program through means of a deduction from the price paid for butterfat produced in those states. Landt said, and North Dakota dairymen have just sent notice of their desire to join in a co-operative program of this kind. Still other dairy states are considering participation.

Election of 17 directors representing all branches of the dairy industry will be among the principal orders of business.

The meeting will be held on the farm of Leo Eick located on the corner of Highway 54 and County Trunk B just outside the village limits of Shiocton. County Agent J. F. Magnus and a representative of the University of Wisconsin have arranged the meeting.

The county agricultural department will have a poultry exhibit as well as a culling demonstration. Mr. Eick also has an experiment of interest in that half of his flock of 1,000 leghorn pullets were raised in confinement and half were given free range. Hatcherymen, feed dealers, poultry and egg buyers have been invited as well as the poultry raisers.

A considerable number of poultry diseases are present in this community.

Shipments of Feeders Into State Increase

In spite of higher prices for feeders as compared with a year ago, the number of feeder cattle and sheep shipped into Wisconsin in September was almost double the number for the same month a year ago, according to Dr. V. S. Larson, state livestock sanitation director, in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

The total number of feeder cattle brought into Wisconsin last month was 4,343 as compared with 2,199 for September, 1938. The number of sheep brought into the state was 5,441, or nearly double the 27,901 shipped in during September of last year.
